Flake Smith is trying to tell me to mail my Christmas packages early. That information would have been welcomed 20 years ago. The kids I used to send packages to have grown up and can be their own Santa Claus.

I am not opposed to the Community Chest or any other movement having as objectives the alleviation of human suffering, but as a solution to this problem I would much prefer to see business so substantial there would be no necessity for such a condition. To that extent I am in favor of boosting jobs so as to take up the unemployment. It restores happiness and self-reliance.

Paul Palmer, in from Lido Isle to tell me that if any dull moments appear in Santa Ana, to come to the beach, where they have 12 months' business and amusements. Now I think he's got something there. I've made a few observations while visiting at Lido Isle, and the way that place is growing is a factual refutation of hard times. If I could get some generous soul to give me a house and a boat I would move to Lido Isle, and then sell the boat.

Am I right about Bob Fernandez having been chosen to lead the Community Chest next year? If I am, there is some encouragement to me in the selection. They are getting down to my size. So naturally I feel obligated to give the full force and effect of this powerful little one-eighth Walter to Bob in his campaign—when it starts, and if I am here.

Well, guess I'll have to wait until Dec. 3 for the next rain. I've missed all the others.

And then there was a generous sprinkling of friends who confessed they took in too much territory Thanksgiving day and put in an uncomfortable night.

Ever act as a messenger for two friends? You are requested to tell one what the other said, and when you deliver the message you only remembered part of it, made up the rest, and when the sender and the receiver checked up on your story you had lost two friends? Try it sometime.

Manufacturers are making radios so small that it won't be long before you can get one in your vest pocket, that is if you have a vest.

Art McFadden, who has so many responsible positions that he gets home occasionally was genuinely welcomed Monday when he introduced W. C. Mullendore at the local Chamber of Commerce luncheon. He made an interesting statement in response to the home-town welcome that possibly with the exception of Col. Sol. Finley he was the oldest man in the room in point of residence. And he might have added, if it were not for the personal element, that he was the exception to the old rule that a prophet is not without honor save in his own town. Art McFadden has rendered such a conspicuous and valuable service to such a varied number of interests that he holds a distinguished place in community affection.

The unemployed census is finished. It is of doubtful value, but it didn't cost much. The taxpayer could have included that in his list of things to be thankful for.

The courthouse seems to be the source of west winds. It has developed into quite a blow.

City Attorney Blodgett explained to the city council that it was within the council's province to prohibit any "non-useful" business, in which he included the turf firm which accepts forwarding bets or wagers on horse races. America has gone gambling goofy. Everybody's doing it. The bridge game has its little "so much on the corner," the slot machines tempt our speculative spirit, and even at the luncheon some one wants to match you for the check. Maybe it is a good thing for many of us that the law gives us some protection from our own weaknesses.

My friend McGowan turns in a baby shower item which was given him so long ago that the baby was walking before he got the news to me.

Wedding Chapel Head Hits Back At Opposing Pastors

'WHO IS A RACKETEER?' ASKS BLOSS

Says Local Ministers 'Put Groom on Spot'

Who's a racketeer? Earl C. Bloss, manager of the Santa Ana Wedding Chapel, hurled that question back at the Santa Ana Ministerial association and the Los Angeles presbytery today, as he took up the cudgels in his own defense in the face of an organized church investigation of Southland bridal businesses.

Bloss accused the churches of exactly the same tactics in securing wedding business as those employed by his frankly commercialized concern.

He declared that the Santa Ana Ministerial association recently conducted the practice of sending "invitations" or solicitations of business to every woman who filed notice of intention to wed in the Orange county license bureau. He admitted, however, the association had discontinued the practice.

Bloss also pointed to the church calendar hung in the license bureau as an example of solicitation of wedding business by the ministerial association.

He directed his attack principally against the Rev. O. Scott McFarland, president of the ministerial association, who was quoted in several Southland papers Wednesday as referring to wedding chapels as a "racket," and a "commercialization of the sacred rights of the church."

Bloss demanded that McFarland either prove his contention or publicly retract it.

"The fact is," he said, "that the wedding chapel policy to make a definite charge for its services is a new method, appreciated by every individual who wishes to get married."

"Now the groom refuses to be put on the spot when the time comes to ask the minister 'how much do I owe you?' The usual answer is, 'we make no charge. You may give whatever you please.'"

COURT RULING ENCOURAGES BET SHOP

Los Angeles Decision Basis for New Stand

The Santa Ana Forwarding Agency, determined to stay in business in Santa Ana, today was mapping plans for a possible fight against the city's recently-enacted prohibitory ordinance.

Attorney Z. B. West, representing the bet agency, said his clients "undoubtedly would take action, if for any reason he thinks the city ordinance is illegal."

Indications that the agency has grounds for a successful fight against the ordinance, passed last Monday to its first reading, were seen in a decision from the appellate division of the Los Angeles superior court.

The decision held that such agencies cannot be regulated by ordinance.

In effect, it said, "holding and receiving and transmitting wagers, if made illegal, would be a felony and not a misdemeanor."

Hence, it continued, regulation would not come under jurisdiction of city ordinance.

TO SET COURSE

West said the agency had not yet fully determined the course it would take, but that he planned a conference with his clients late today at which its probable course would be set.

The Los Angeles decision was handed down in a habeas corpus action brought by Al Salvaggi, sentenced in Burbank to pay a fine of $200 or serve 100 days in jail for violation of a city ordinance relating to horse race betting. The court ordered Salvaggi released.

D. F. CAMPBELL PASSES AWAY

Death came to another of Orange county's grand old men early this morning when D. F. Campbell, for 50 years a prominent resident of Orange, passed away after a two-day illness.

Just last Thursday he and Mrs. Campbell celebrated their 52nd wedding anniversary in conjunction with a ladies' night celebration of the Rotary club, of which he was a member. At the age of 82, he was active until two days ago.

One of the early ranchers of the county, he later became director of both Orange banks, the First National and the Orange Savings bank, and was president of the Orange Building and Loan Co. at the time of his death.

Besides his Rotary affiliation, Mr. Campbell was a member of the Fraternal Aid association, and a lifelong member of the Presbyterian church. He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Julia Campbell, and by nine children, who include E. Earl Campbell, Ensley Campbell, Mrs. Elma J. Wood and Robert Campbell, all of Orange; Roy E. Campbell and Mrs. Hazel Thompson of Alhambra; Mrs. Julia Barnes of Los Angeles, and Mrs. Margaret Hayes of Merced.

There are also 17 surviving grandchildren and one great-grandchild. Funeral services will be held by the C. W. Coffey funeral directors Monday at 2 p. m. at the Orange Presbyterian church with the Rev. Dr. Robert B. McAuley and the Rev. M. L. Pearson officiating and burial at Fairhaven.

New Native Sons? Find Trace of 'Oldest' Men

BERKELEY. (AP)—The fossilized bones of men who may have been the original native sons—a human type which lived in the coastal plains long before the ancient Indians—were found today by a California anthropologist today with a potential new link to American antiquity.

The anthropology department announced that skeletons and artifacts taken from depressed mounds near Lodi, 60 miles east of here, bore evidence of a culture hitherto unknown to science.

Investigators said the remains were not as old as the earliest type of man found on this continent or elsewhere but that their great age was unmistakable.

WPA WORKS ON CREEK

Work was started this morning on lining the Santiago creek under a WPA project and announcement was made by Dan Mulherron, WPA administrator, his office will be in charge of erecting suppression barracks at Yorba Linda, Cerropeak, San Juan Capistrano and Orange beginning Dec. 1.

Total cost of the two projects will amount to $44,819. The lining of Santiago Creek will be valued at $7488 of which the government is to spend $6888 and the city as sponsor, $600. The barracks construction will cost $37,341, of which the forestry service as sponsor is to spend $6889.

The Santiago project will engage 25 to 30 men over a period of five months. Work is to extend from Main to Broadway or a distance of approximately 2500 feet. It embraces the lining of the banks with concrete.

Yorba Scion Pleads In Auto Case

Vincent S. Yorba, scion of a pioneer Orange county family, pleaded guilty in superior court today to charges of driving a car without the owner's consent and asked for probation.

Judge James I. Allen set hearing on the probation application for Dec. 3. Yorba is charged with driving a car belonging to Dr. Paul E. Rumph last Nov. 3.

PONTIAC STRIKE ENDS

PONTIAC, Mich. (AP)—Work was resumed today at the Pontiac plant of the Fisher body division of General Motors corporation with 2000 employees going back to their jobs. The plant was closed by a sit-down strike Nov. 17.

Ends Death-Defying Colorado Boat Trip

BOULDER CITY, Nev. (AP)—An 1100-mile, hazard-filled journey on the treacherous waters of the Green and Colorado rivers back of him, Buzz Holmstrom, 28-year-old adventurer of Coquille, Ore., said today he would not try the trip again if he had a chance to do it.

Holmstrom landed his 16-foot boat here late yesterday after traveling through the rapids of the Colorado river, along which is scattered the wreckage of a number of previous expeditions. The trip, starting at Green River, Wyo., took seven weeks.

"The Upper Green river passed through country rich in wild game," he said. "I saw scores of deer, hundreds of beaver, geese and wild duck."

"I traveled only in daylight hours, and took as many pictures as possible in order to report the journey."

1000 BOYS HERE FOR RENDEZVOUS

Western Scouts Pour Into Harbor Area

With hundreds of Sea Scouts from Arizona, California, Nevada and Utah pouring into the harbor area this morning, local Scout officials were enthusiastic in reporting prospects for the most successful "rendezvous" for boys yet held. More than 1000 are expected to arrive before nightfall, they reported.

A complete camp and "land ship" have been set up on city property on the banks of Newport bay, with the enormous army of young men and their leaders to be fed from a huge mess tent. Sleeping quarters have been furnished by county officials and the city of Newport Beach.

Featuring tonight's program will be a banquet for all leaders, to be held in the American Legion hut on Bay avenue. Harbormaster Tommy Bouchey is in charge of preparing the dinner, which about 85 Scout enthusiasts will attend.

Howard Gillette of Chicago, national Sea Scout leader, will be honored at tonight's dinner, it was announced today.

Many water contests were slated for this afternoon, with a dance for all Scouts planned for this evening in the Rendezvous ballroom. The Orange county Scout council will act as hosts at tonight's dance, with all taking part required to wear the official uniform.

Members of the local committee planning the event, which will run through Saturday and Sunday, are Dr. G. M. Grundy, Mayor Harry H. Williamson, Harbormaster Bouchey, John A. Seigel, assistant city engineer, J. D. Watkins, American Legion post commander and Harry Welch, chamber of commerce secretary.

MEN MULCTED BY JOB FRAUD

Golden opportunity knocked for five unemployed Santa Anans a few days ago. They were to have jobs as truck drivers and supervisors in the state department's self-help cooperatives. They had no reason to think the opportunity was a mirage.

But today the mirage vanished—along with $660 they had saved during better days.

The men had produced the $660—in varying amounts depending on the importance of the jobs promised them—as cash bond to guarantee their good faith.

It was not their good faith that was on trial today before Justice of the Peace Kenneth E. Morrison, however, but that of Mrs. Ruth Coleman, 112 South Halladay street, 23-year-old former secretary for the state cooperative project in La Habra.

Charged with grand theft in the five men's complaint she had taken money from them on pretense they were to work for the state self-help department, Mrs. Coleman pleaded guilty and was held without bail to answer to the superior court.

No longer affiliated with the state cooperative, the woman said she had planned the scheme because her mother had been ill and bills she could not pay were piling up. Nearly all the money has been spent, she reported.

Victims of the hoax were Harry Halstad, Wayne Reynolds, Claude Weeks, Herman Reitz and Vern Calahan.

C. OF C. TELLS XMAS PLANS

Plans were completed today by the retail division of the Chamber of Commerce for the broadcast of live talent music in the business district and for elaborate street decorations along more than 20 blocks of the shopping district after Dec. 4 in observance of the Christmas holidays.

"Decorations this year will be bigger and better than ever before," Howard Wood, secretary of the chamber of commerce promised today. "Every street lamp in the area to be decorated with two 12-foot silver-tipped fir trees in which will be placed 72 colored Christmas lights."

The lights will be turned on for the first time a week from next Saturday evening at 7 o'clock. Five minutes before this merchants in the district have been requested to turn off their own window lights to add to the impressiveness of the turning on of the Christmas lights.

MUSIC BROADCAST

At this time the first of a series of live musical talent programs will be broadcast from speakers located atop the First National Bank building and also at Fourth and Broadway.

On each Saturday evening until Christmas the musical programs will be presented for one hour. After Dec. 20 and until Christmas (Continued on Page 2, Col. 5)

County G. O. P. to Select Head Man

'Head man' for Orange county G. O. P. will be named Monday. Formation of a six-man committee entrusted with the authority to choose a coordinator for the county party was completed today, with the naming of Mrs. Howard Timmins, Santa Ana, as the sixth member.

The committee will meet Monday noon in the Green Cat cafe to select a coordinator, first step in the "revitalizing" of the party in Orange county.

Man Attacks Child In Playground

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Alleged by Detective Lieutenant John Hansen to be an escaped inmate of the Minnesota state asylum, Henry Otis Cotant, 30, was held today after he was charged with striking a small girl in the abdomen with his fist.

Hansen said the man screamed wildly as he invaded a playground, and struck Sylvia Strachen, 9 years of age. She was treated at police emergency hospital for bruises.

MAY CENSOR U. S. PRESS IN SHANGHAI

Radio, Cable Office Under Military Rule

SHANGHAI. (Saturday) (AP)—Japan tightened her grip on Shanghai today by taking over control of all communications facilities hitherto held by the Chinese government in the international settlement as well as the native parts of the city.

The postoffices, telegraph and radio administrations and broadcasting stations XQHC and CGRA were placed under Japanese rule. Many of the principal offices and installations of these services are in the international settlement.

Japanese authorities have not indicated whether they intend to establish their own censors in the cable and radio offices communicating with foreign countries.

Japanese army units seized a pontoon and ferry installations in the Whangpoo river formerly belonging to the Chinese greater Shanghai city government. The pontoon is near the berth of the United States cruiser Augusta.

There were reports, not immediately confirmed, that the Japanese also intended to seize the customs jetty on the international settlement's waterfront, largely used as a landing place by American and other foreign fleets.

Serious international complications were feared in the event of Japanese attempts to control operations of foreign cable and radio companies, including the American Commercial Pacific cable and Mackay Radio companies and British and Danish concerns. (These companies, by contracts with the Chinese government, hitherto have accepted all outgoing messages from the Chinese administrative agencies and submitted to Chinese censorship.)

Japanese indicated plans to extend their influence in the Chinese customs service at Shanghai by placing Japanese appraisers and examiners in custom offices on the Shanghai waterfront. This will follow closely the recent appointment of high Japanese administrative officials in local customs offices.

JAPAN ALARMED AT SOVIET PLANE MOVEMENT

TOKYO. (AP)—The Tokyo newspaper Hochi today published a dispatch from Tsuruga, asserting that 1500 Soviet airplanes had been massed in the maritime provinces, that part of Siberia nearest Japan.

The same source reported 1000 Russian bombing planes were entering China by way of Sianfu, capital of Western Shensi province, presumably to buttress China's resistance to Japan.

Tsuruga is a port on Japan's main coast, normally the terminus of steamer services to Vladivostok. Japanese correspondents there frequently forward rumors of developments in Siberia which are not confirmed. Latest reports have not placed the Russian air strength in Far Eastern Siberia at more than 700 or 800.

The Hochi dispatch also said the Russians were rushing submarines (Continued on Page 2, Col. 4)

More Room For The Fans

By BRADEN FINCH

Football tasted better than turkey to thousands of fans here yesterday as they watched the Dons win again. The game showed that the Dons have become such an attraction that the Municipal Bowl is no longer large enough to serve such parties in.

Several hundred customers had to sit on the grass or in the end zone bleachers, while others didn't even try to squeeze in, frightened away by the crowd.

City officials showed they are thinking of the fans when they built that big scoreboard earlier in the season. They will tally again if they can figure out a way to get in more sideline bleachers and auto parking space before the play-off with San Bernardino here next Friday night.

ROOSEVELT RUSHES NEW PROGRAM TO AID NATION'S BUSINESS

REVISION OF TAXES ALSO HURRIED

Messages to Congress Revealed in Talk

WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt coupled today renewed advocacy of tax revision—as soon as congress is ready—with three other moves designed to aid business.

Listed at a press conference in reply to questions they were:

A message to congress Monday on means of stimulating private financing of a big housing program.

A message to congress Tuesday recommending curtailment of annual federal contributions to state road building. This slash recently was suggested by Secretary Morgenthau to help balance the treasury's budget.

A letter to department heads urging faster spending of a quarter of a million dollars available for buying supplies in the remaining months of the fiscal year.

How soon tax revision might be "ready" was not immediately apparent, however. Chairman Vinson (D., Ky.) of a house tax subcommittee said today he would have no objection to bringing legislation easing business tax burdens before the special session if it could be completed in time.

But he said he could not fix a probable date on which a measure might be ready, adding "we just are working as hard and fast as we can."

While the White House discussed business aids, congressional committees talked of dollar stabilization and foreign marketing as adjuncts to pending "ever-normal granary" measures to aid agriculture.

The senate agriculture committee suggested a single federal currency to adjust and regulate the currency, adding the dollar was buying too little now.

FDR SURVEYS FLOOD CONTROL
WASHINGTON. (AP)—President Roosevelt surveyed with three house Democrats today the outlook for a future regular program of public works, particularly navigation improvements and flood control.

The President has suggested spending $500,000,000 annually for public works out of the regular budget. Allocations of funds under the emergency public works program ceased several months ago.

Putnam to Head Expedition On Galapagos Island Trip

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—George Palmer Putnam, writer and former publisher, said today he had agreed to head an expedition to the Galapagos islands and Central America about Dec. 15 to obtain a collection of small animals and birds for Zoopark here.

Friends said he needed a rest after the long period of anxiety following the disappearance of his wife, Amelia Earhart, on her attempted flight around the world.

The trip will be made at the invitation of Tay Garnett, film director, on his 105-foot yacht Athene, in which he recently completed a globe-girdling voyage, and under the auspices of the California Zoological society, which operates Zoopark.

The expedition also will obtain still and motion pictures "of certain aspects of Galapagos animal, bird and marine life."

Garnett said he may join the expedition by flying to Panama, if he completes a picture he is now directing in time.

Sixteen persons will be aboard the Athene.

geles authorities and property interests in the path of the "moving mountain," recalls a trip over that scenic spot many years ago with Willis George Emerson, author of "Winning Winds," "Smoky God," and a number of other books, and his friend, Dr. H. E. Barnes, of Santa Ana. Even at that early date there was some trouble on Elysian park, but it wasn't moving at that time. Emerson wanted to take a ride over the park so he could give his friends a view of the then Los Angeles which was much different from the present Los Angeles. He was so enthusiastic about Southern California that he laid the foundation for an approval on the part of his midwest friends by introducing a fellow called Swiss Colony. I haven't met him since.

Pioneer Santa Ana Woman Dies

With all ten of her children at her bedside, Mrs. Nellie Munger, pioneer resident of Santa Ana and widow of the late Samuel Munger, well-known rancher, died yesterday at her home. She was a member of Santa Ana chapter, Order of Eastern Star, and had lived in Orange county 46 years.

She is survived by eight daughters, Mrs. Garland C. Ross, Mrs. William L. Silva, Mrs. Robert C. Benton, Mrs. Gilbert U. Kraemer, Mrs. Guy J. Gilbert, Mrs. Bennie W. Osterman, Mrs. Willis F. Mitchell, and Mrs. Fred Schildmeyer; two sons, Horace Munger and Boyd S. Munger; three sisters, Mrs. George C. Miller, Mrs. Will Potts, Mrs. Ray Steel; and two brothers, John E. Woods and Warren W. Woods.

Funeral services will be held Saturday at 2 p. m. from Smith and Tutill's chapel.

is being put on the spot, and is being placed in an embarrassing position. One of the reasons the chapel is popular is because the bride and groom can intelligently plan a wedding service financially in accordance with their ability."

Bloss also maintained that he had been a regularly ordained minister before coming to Santa Ana, where he organized the Universal Christian church and became its head.

"It was instrumental in organizing the Universal Christian church," he said, "and I defy Mr. McFarland to point his finger at and criticize it in any of its policies or functions. We enjoy the same privilege as any other church that ever was organized."

Incorporation papers for the Universal Christian church were filed by Bloss in the county clerk's office Nov. 9, 1935.

"We also," he continued, "would like to ask Mr. McFarland if he can enlighten the public as to who ordained the minister. In other words, which came first, the chicken or the egg?"

The ministers, he said, have made a "desperate attempt to legislate the wedding chapel out of business." They did not succeed, he said, because their methods were "unconstitutional." "We are not interested," Bloss concluded, "in the fact that the Presbytery is not favorable to wedding chapels. They do not represent all of the protestant churches in their opinions, and as a matter of fact a great many of the churches do not denounce the chapel, but favor it and patronize it."

JAPAN FIGHTERS NEAR NANKING

SHANGHAI. (AP)—Spearhead units of Japan's Shanghai armies tore into the heart of Chinese defenses today in a drive their commander-in-chief declared would force speedy collapse of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek's regime. Field officers sent back word to Japanese headquarters that their troops had crossed Lake Tai, the great natural barrier between Shanghai and Nanking, for a push against the virtually evacuated capital.

General Iwane Matsui, commander of Japanese forces, proclaimed in an interview with the Japanese Shanghai United News that his armies might be forced to invade the interior far up the Yangtze from Nanking unless Chiang's government ends its resistance.

WARNS WORLD
"Nanking must abandon its policy of depending upon European and American countries and European and American people must understand that their support of the Chinese policy never will contribute to security and peace in the Orient," he asserted.

The general added a prediction, however, that the Chinese regime would fall soon, bringing about "various troubles" which would be settled under Japan's guidance. Chiang, he said, must be brought to terms.

In Nanking, Chiang appeared undaunted by the Japanese march up the Shanghai peninsula.

"China will resist to the last man," he said. "I am confident that right will overcome might."

105-Year-Old Physician Still Hale and Hearty

LEBANON, Pa. (AP)—The nation's oldest physician looked back today on 105 years of life and found it all "very fine."

Dr. William M. Guilford, whom the University of Pennsylvania claims as its senior living alumnus, sat quietly in his comfortable two-story brick home and greeted friends who came to congratulate him on attaining another anniversary, his 105th.

"Do you remember Louis Pasteur?" Dr. Guilford was asked. "Louis Pasteur?" the doctor replied. "Yes, I remember that name."

Pasteur did not develop his germ theories until nine years after Dr. Guilford received his parchment from the University of Pennsylvania in 1852.

"When I went to Penn there were just two buildings," Dr. Guilford reminisced. "They were brick—painted yellow."

A friend brought in the yellowed diploma and the doctor held it in his hands.

"I was very proud that day," he said.

the music will be furnished from seven to eight o'clock each evening. Among the organizations presenting the talent for these broadcasts are the local churches, the Cantando club, the Musical Arts club and the Elks Double quartet.

Daily broadcasts of transcriptions will be made at fifteen minute intervals at 10 a. m., 12 noon and 4 p. m. each day from Dec. 4 to Christmas.

WINDOW PRIZES
Plans were also completed for the store window decoration contest today. Fifty dollars in prizes will be awarded to the six smaller stores and the six larger stores in Santa Ana with the most appropriately dressed windows.

Prizes are to be awarded on the following basis: one-fourth for Christmas motif; one-fourth for merchandise appeal; one-fourth for artistic display and one-fourth for originality. First prize will be ten dollars; second, five dollars and two prizes of two and one-half dollars in each of the two divisions.

Members on the general committee in charge of the street and window decorations and the music presentations included: Ivie Stein, Phil Brown, Walter Swabberger and Milton Foster. Cecil Cross Willets will be in direct charge of the artists who are to sing and give instrumental numbers for the broadcasts.

Third Charge Bad Luck for Rancher

Because he was found guilty of his third drunk driving offense, Ralph W. Collar, 45, Tuslin rancher, will celebrate Christmas and Easter in the Orange county jail.

And because he assertedly got drunk again while he was awaiting trial, he'll be there for the Fourth of July as well.

Maximum penalties on two counts were handed out by Judge Dwight Hayden Wednesday. Sitting as city judge, Hayden gave Collar a 180-day sentence for a dismembered drunk driving charge, then he re-convened as justice of the peace and sentenced the rancher to 50 days for being drunk on a public highway.

Arrested a week ago on the drunk driving count, Collar pleaded not guilty and was released on $250 bail. The day before his trial, he was picked up by county officers on charges of being drunk on a public highway.

Traffic News Good News for Once

Despite football crowds and family outings, no one was reported injured in Orange county Thanksgiving traffic.

The infant daughter of Mercedes Navarro was slightly hurt Wednesday afternoon when she was struck by a car driven by Henry Tannenbaum, 2407 Pointsettia street, near Talbert.

The only other accident reported by California highway patrolmen occurred at the top of El Modena grade at 9:30 p. m. Wednesday when cars driven by John F. Lynch, 19, 911 South Parton street, and Thelma A. Elliott, 25, Orange, crashed, causing a considerable property damage. No one was injured.

'Mysterious Monty' to Seek U. S. and British Golf Cups

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—John Montague, whose golfing ability in tournament play is more or less a question mark, said today he had his eyes on the British and American open golf championships.

"My chief aim now is a lot of golf," said the rotund golfer, whose exploits on Southern California links first won him national attention. "I've got to practice four or five hours a day, and then I'm going out for those British and American open titles."

Montague arrived here yesterday afternoon by airplane from New York. It was his first visit since he was acquitted of a seven-year-old robbery charge in Elizabethtown, N. Y.

11 Missing in Canadian Plane

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—A Canadian passenger plane, carrying probably 11 persons, is missing in the wilderness north of here.

The ship, operated by Starratt Airways, left Pickle Lake Wednesday afternoon for a 120-mile flight to Sioux Lookout. Pilot Ken Smith, the chief engineer of the airways, Keith Gregson; and probably nine passengers, all miners, were said to be aboard.

Airways officials believed the ship, encountering fog, landed somewhere in the forested region, probably at Root Portage camp, 65 miles north of Hudson. The camp is fully equipped with shelter and food sufficient for several weeks.

Jail Asserted Attacker of Cop

Virtually recovered from injuries sustained in an accident caused when he assertedly grabbed Franklin Davis, federal immigration inspector, as he was being brought to the county jail here, Luis Figueroa, Placentia, was booked in the jail Wednesday as a federal prisoner.

Confined to the county hospital prison ward since Monday night when the accident occurred, Figueroa was turned over to Deputy Sheriff G. F. McNeely and Fred Swayze, who made the arrest for Davis. The man was charged with violating the federal immigration act.

Pickets Fail to Stop Ford Plant

ST. LOUIS. (AP)—Striking United Automobile Workers of America, massing a heavy picket line with the aid of other CIO unions, failed today in a second attempt to halt production at the Ford Motor company's St. Louis assembly plant.

The picket line, formed in the early morning darkness, was broken, with little disorder, by automobiles loaded with workers and escorted into the plant by police cars.

Saturday, Monday and Tuesday Only

The reason for this mad sale of suede shoes is to give us lots and lots of work to do so that we can forget how much we ate on Thanksgiving Day! At least, that's our story!

We're offering a mere matter of 500 pairs of early fall footwear, some Red Cross, some Rice-O'Neill beauties, regularly up to $10... mostly black and brown, mostly suede shoes... at $5 a pair!

We don't know what kind of a riot this will incite, so we're limiting it to three days only, Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, to play safe. Can't have any telephone or mail orders.

Does that sound like we have something here?

SANTA ANA WOMAN RETURNS FROM SHELL-TORN CHINA

VIEWED WAR FROM BEHIND JAP LINES

Husband Remains At Post in Chantung

Thanksgiving for Mrs. Jesse B. Wolfe, 514 East Chestnut street, had a special significance yesterday. It meant peace, safety and familiar, shady streets, instead of a sky ominous with bombers and days filled with fear.

For Mrs. Wolfe returned home yesterday from the Chinese war zone, after 10 months.

Her Thanksgiving was tinged with prayers for the safety of Mr. Wolfe, who remains at his post in Chee Loo university, Tsinan, Chantung province, directly in the path of advancing Japanese armies. Wolfe is engineer for the school.

"I haven't heard from my husband since I left the war zone on the Transport Chaumont, Oct. 23," Mrs. Wolfe said. "I saw him then for just an hour. I see today the Japanese are just a few miles from Tsinan—but I know he's all right."

"The most thrilling thing," she said, was the sight of two U. S. Navy destroyers anchored off shore at the little summer resort in Northern China, shortly after shells began flying in the undeclared Sino-Japanese war.

The Wolfe's left Santa Ana last September for the Chinese University, arriving there just in time for the first hostilities. It was while Mrs. Wolfe was in north China for a summer vacation that hostilities actually broke out. She never was able to return to her husband.

"I never saw any actual fighting," she said today, "because I was behind the Japanese lines with about 20 other Americans. The sky was filled with bombers on their way to Chinese positions every day, however. At times we could count as many as 50 in the air at once."

Mrs. Wolfe was evacuated to Yokohama when the fighting became more intense, and then crossed the ocean to America with about 150 other refugees on the President McKinley. She saw her husband for an hour as she was transferred from the Chaumont to the President McKinley.

Chee Loo university, where Wolfe is stationed, lies just across the Yellow river, in Chinese territory. It is at this point that Japanese forces are massing in a drive to cross the river and crush the Chinese defenders.

Christmas Seal Campaign Gets Under Way Here Today

Touched off by a proclamation from Mayor Fred C. Rowland, the Santa Ana Christmas Seal drive was under way today.

The tuberculosis seal campaign is headed again in Santa Ana by Dr. Margaret D. Baker, president of the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association.

A. J. Cluckshank, treasurer, is in charge of the funds.

Stressing importance of the work done by the association, Dr. Baker pointed out that approximately 700 persons annually are treated for the disease in Orange county, and that of this number approximately 80 die.

Funds contribute toward care of these sufferers, and make possible conduct of a weekly Friday afternoon clinic, where 275 persons have been examined since last Jan. 1.

Mayor Rowland's proclamation said:

"Hear ye and know ye that by the words contained in this proclamation, I, Fred C. Rowland, mayor of Santa Ana, here say and herewith set aside Nov. 26, 1937, as the day on which the sale of Christmas Seals for the raising of funds to help fight tuberculosis, the worst menace to the health and lives of our young people, shall begin."

"Let all residents of Santa Ana purchase as liberally as they may see fit these Tuberculosis Christmas Seals, bearing the double-barred cross, the international emblem of the fight against tuberculosis, mailed by the Orange County Tuberculosis and Health association, 112 West Fifth street, Santa Ana."

Officers of the association include Dr. Baker, LeRoy E. Lyon, Anaheim, first vice president; Father A. J. Hutchinson, San Juan Capistrano, second vice president; Santa Ana, secretary; A. J. Cluckshank, Santa Ana, treasurer; Dr. Waldo S. Wehrly, Santa Ana, consulting specialist; Dr. E. Chase, Santa Ana, roentgenologist; Edna Hewitt Crawford, Santa Ana, executive secretary.

Mrs. Jessie Boughner, Yorba Linda rancher began another court fight today as she entered a demurrer to a $9000 law suit by George C. Oliver, who claims he was duped when Mrs. Boughner sold him a five acre lemon ranch for $15,000.

Mrs. Boughner, acquitted last week by a superior court jury on charges of theft, demurred to Oliver's complaint today, on grounds that it incorporated both a damage action and an action on a trust, which her attorneys, Roger Button and Leo Friis, contend should be in separate causes of action.

Oliver, with his wife, Julie Oliver, asks complete title to the property and $9000 damages.

Seek Aid for Gangster Drive

NEW YORK—(P)—The metropolitan police, glad that many of the city's more notorious gangsters have left town, but sorry they have gone to other Los Angeles, sent help to the western city today.

Twenty-five detectives worked through their Thanksgiving holiday to prepare an extensive, cross-indexed catalogue, a sort of Who's Who of Crime, for District Attorney Buren Fitts of Los Angeles.

The collection is indexed to identify suspects by photograph, fingerprint, name, habits and associates.

Among the picturesque figures catalogued are Louis (Dutch Gold) Schauberg, Louis (Lepke) Buchalter, Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro, Benny (Bugsy) Siegal, and lieutenants of the former Dutch Schultz and Lucky Luciano "mobs."

Detroit Gang Killers Sought

DETROIT—(P)—A theory pointing to hired assassins "from the outside" forced police into a wide-ranging search today for the Thanksgiving killers of Harry Millman, underworld figure.

Two gunmen poured 10 bullets into Millman at a cocktail bar early yesterday.

"They must have been strangers in the city," Chief of Detectives Henry W. Piel said. "Local gangsters would fear being recognized and wouldn't have gone about the job in such a bold way."

TYPHUS CASE REPORTED

First case of typhus fever in Orange county in ten years came to the attention of the county health office this week when it was reported a woman at Costa Mesa had been infected with what is reported as the endemic type of the disease.

The disease in its endemic and less serious form is transmitted from rats to human beings by means of the rat flea and may also be carried by tropical rat mites. Dr. K. H. Sutherland stated the disease is rare here. He said further that the exact source of the infection in this case is not yet determined, but that it may be infected rats or squirrels in the region.

D. W. Tubbs of the county agricultural departments, said today that his department, which has been engaged constantly in rodent eradication, will take immediate preventive measures. Last year the county was thoroughly gone over and a project which is being extended into the Costa Mesa area.

Residents of Costa Mesa say that the town was virtually free from rats until a movie company used the community in filming the production "All Quiet on the Western Front."

A number of rats are said to have been imported for the filming of the picture either escaped or were turned loose.

SCOTS GREYS TO RETAIN UNIFORMS

LONDON. (P)—The Royal Scots Greys, famous British cavalry regiment, celebrated its 256th anniversary today with the assurance that it will keep its grey horses, red tunics and bearskin hats.

Mechanization of the British army had threatened to substitute tanks, overalls and steel crash helmets. The public protested, however, and the Scots Greys were saved at the last minute by War Minister Leslie Hore-Belisha.

Although the present army belief is that steel is superior to horseflesh, officials agreed the Scots Greys might play an important part in the next war. They also noticed that when the Greys prance down the street, recruiting soars.

Science Churches Hold Services

Services of Thanksgiving were conducted on Thursday in all branches of The Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Massachusetts. The subject of the Lesson-Sermon was "Thanksgiving"; and the Golden Text was from the Psalms: "The Lord is my strength and my shield; my heart trusted in him, and I am helped; therefore my heart greatly rejoiceth; and with my song will I praise him."

The Scriptural selections in the Lesson-Sermon included these verses from Zephaniah: "Sing, O daughter of Zion; shout, O Israel; be glad and rejoice with all the heart, O daughter of Jerusalem. The Lord hath taken away thy judgments, he hath cast out thine enemy; the king of Israel, even the Lord, is in the midst of thee; thou shalt not see evil any more. . . . The Lord thy God in the midst of thee is mighty; he will save, he will rejoice over thee with joy; he will rest in his love, he will joy over thee with singing."

One of the passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy, stated: "Divine Love always has met and always will meet every human need. It is not well to

WOMAN ASKS COURT FOR ALIMONY

Seeking to obtain a $60 a month alimony order from her divorced husband, whom she alleges is worth $30,000, Mrs. Juanita J. Kluthe climaxed a bitter court battle today as she prepared to appear before Presiding Superior Judge H. G. Ames this afternoon.

The Kluthes were involved in a legal fight when Kluthe sued his wife for annulment of their marriage, charging fraud. She retaliated with a cross-complaint for divorce, charging her husband with cruelty, which Judge Ames granted.

She now asks that the case be reopened, since Judge Ames in his decision said he was unable to award her alimony because she had established no need in testimony.

She claims she is without funds and unable to make a living. Her husband, she alleges, owns a 25-acre ranch between Garden Grove and Anaheim, worth $30,000.

ELKS PRODUCE 'SUNNY SKIES'

Amateur theatricals will leap into the northern Orange county spotlight next week when Anaheim lodge of Elks presents the musical comedy "Sunny Skies" with an all-star cast selected from prominent citizens and school thespians.

The show is to be presented Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 29 and 30 at the Anaheim high school auditorium, and Wednesday, Dec. 1, in the auditorium of the Fullerton schools. The purpose is to raise funds for the lodge's extensive Christmas charities, according to Exalted Ruler B. F. Mattox.

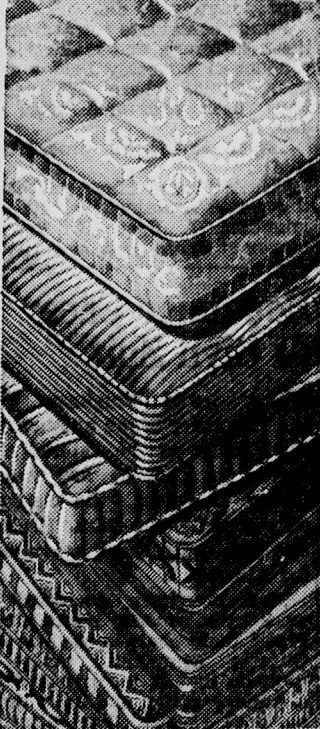

Song and dance numbers are interwoven with a lovely romance involving "Beverly Wyndam" (the leading role to be portrayed by Evaline Rohde, Garden Grove high school girl) and a Broadway song writer (Bud Forster of San Juan Capistrano) and a playwright (Bill Cann, Fullerton J. C.). Tangled in the romance is a long standing feud which affords members of the Wyndam family opportunity to break into the action, and drag others with them.

Daily rehearsals of both principals and choruses are under direction of Perrin G. Somers of the John B. Rogers Production company, at the Elks clubhouse. Helen Nelson of Anaheim is assisting in the direction.

Grace Taylor, Anaheim dance artist and instructor, will be featured in several numbers, together with juveniles from her schools.

CHAPTER XXXIV

THE wind came with a low moan—a great rushing wall of wind, sweeping down upon the helpless yacht from the west.

Joan and Sherman Garrison stood pressed closely together at the rail and watched it come. It was like that—it could be seen as well as heard, approaching. Blackness had blotched out the sun, was closing in upon them.

The plume of smoke to the southward had resolved itself into the form of a low-hulled vessel whose single smokestack billowed black clouds of smoke.

Distress signals had been run up on the yacht as soon as the other boat was sighted, and it was evident, from its changed course, that the signals had been seen.

It was a race against time—with all the odds against success. The potential rescuer was broad-beamed and sluggish, built for power and stamina but not for speed.

Watching breathlessly, it seemed to Joan that the low-hulled vessel was being thrust forward by an unseen hand on the very verge of the blackness closing in, as though an irresistible force decreed the rescuing ship should be given its opportunity against all the laws of probability.

SHERMAN GARRISON shook his head as the moan of the approaching wind rose to an eerie wail.

"It's no use. Even if they reach us before we go down, it would be impossible to launch a lifeboat. Only a little while now..." He made a conclusive gesture with his hand, left the rest of it unsaid.

Joan said softly, "Why don't they turn back? They must realize it's hopeless."

"The tradition of the sea," Garrison replied. "They can't turn back—not while there's a stick of us afloat. We're deceiving them to their death." He sighed heavily.

Joan pitied the old man suddenly. Her fingers were fiercely protective on his arm.

"Don't give up—yet," she whispered. There was a commotion behind them—the scuffle of feet, then Guy's excited voice.

"There, Mabel! A boat coming to our rescue! Everything's going to be all right."

Garrison smiled crookedly at his nephew as Guy and Mary ranged alongside them at the rail. Mabel's face was streaked with tears, her eyes were red-rimmed.

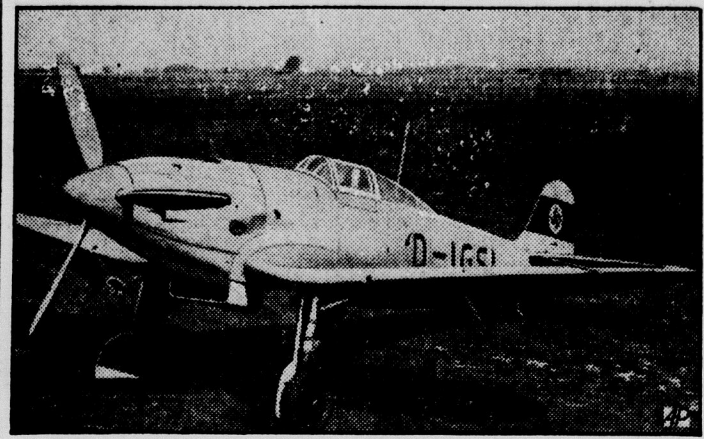

"The hurricane will strike long before the ship can reach us," Garrison remarked conversationally.

"It's your fault!" Guy exclaimed, with shrill emphasis. "Your stubbornness! If we die, you will have murdered every one of us as surely as if you'd held a gun to our heads."

Garrison nodded soberly. "I admit the indictment."

AT THAT moment, the first

TOASTMASTERS MAKE RECORDS

LAGUNA BEACH.—Through the courtesy of Herbert Caldwell, local radio dealer, the Laguna Beach Toastmasters club was furnished a recording machine and each member present had a phonograph record made of a 10-minute speech.

Some of the subjects covered were: A trip to the South Sea Islands, the constitution of the United States, things to be thankful for at Thanksgiving, progress in radio broadcasting, Old Mother Hubbard, a discussion on pork, and the hopes of a real art center for Laguna.

Playing of the recordings revealed how little a speaker knows of how he sounds to others, most Toastmasters upon hearing their speeches were quite amazed that their voice and manner of talking could be so different than they had imagined it.

The meeting was presided over by Ed Beaver, toastmaster of the evening. C. Addison Van Loenen, T. D. McBride and Dic MacBird were visiting members from the El Camino Toastmasters club in Santa Ana.

Other members present were Terrance Sheehan, Emil Wickman, Walter Lamb, Sam Durand, Harold Reed, Duane Kipp, Herbert Caldwell, Joseph Frenette and Mr. and Mrs. Keith White. TOWNSEND NEWS, VIEWS

By WALTER R. KOBB

A dispatch issued by the Associated Press on Nov. 20 illustrates how widely economists disagree as to the cause of the present business recession. Of the twelve economists whose opinions are cited no two agree on the remedial measures which should be instituted to bring business out of the doldrums into normality. The variety of opinions expressed are of themselves ample proof that there is considerable of the theoretical involving the deductions of the average economist.

The opinions expressed by Prof. Irving Fisher of Yale University comes nearer to analyzing the cause for America's problems than that of any of the others which the dispatch quotes. Although this writer does not agree with a portion of his suggestions yet certain things which he suggests as a remedy for the business recession seem practical and to the point. He says:

"The main reason for the present recession, as well as for the original depression, was monetary. That's what the Townsends have always claimed."

Prof. Fisher also says: "Between 1929 and 1933 the nation's check book money (demand deposits) shrank by $8,000,000,000. What the professor fails to say is that this shrinkage in our monetary supply at that time was occasioned because of contraction of credit policies instituted by the Federal Reserve banks. Mr. Fisher then adds: "Between 1933 and 1936 that shortage of money was more than made up. In 1937 this money supply has been shrinking again. So far it has shrunk by $1,000,000,000. That shrinkage could not be made a recession. Restoring the shortage would largely cure the recession." These words of the university professor came near to talking Townsend philosophy. Except that we don't money to bankers will cure the ills of America but it is certainly true that the crying need of America at this time is a more abundant supply of money in circulation.

The professor of economics in describing best methods for bringing a proper business balance says: "The best method is one which could be applied almost overnight if congress would enact" legislation for Federal Reserve banks to lend to member banks, without interest enough new bank credit to bring present 20 per cent reserves behind demand deposits up to 100 per cent so as to get the volume of our money under control, and then to buy bonds with still more credit until enough deposits shall be in circulation to bring back prices, business and employment."

It is encouraging from a Townsend movement standpoint to find a notable economist in so near agreement with the above words in principle as the above words indicated. It has long been advocated by Dr. Townsend and his followers that a proper money circulation would operate speedily to cure economic and unemployment problems of America. But they will disagree with Prof. Fisher in his statement that money placed in banks to be loaned to the people and business concerns will cure unemployment and lack of business problems "almost overnight."

The Townsends argue that instead of placing more credit money in the banks of the nation that it should be placed in the hands of the people to be spent in the channels of trade. They also argue that the spending power vested in the elderly in the form of generous annuities will speedily bring the business balance needed, and the added profits of which the national employment needed would speedily result.

Buying power in the hands of the people is the need of America and will inevitably continue as the paramount need until furnished. The balance which is furnished will be the balance between the capability of production and the people's purchasing power be attained and when such is realized the problems of America will have been solved. Using a portion of the language of the university professor, "the best method is one which could be supplied overnight" providing for the operation nationally of the Townsend plan principles.

SACRAMENTO RIVER NEARS FLOOD STAGE

SACRAMENTO. (AP)—An unexpected rise in the Feather river, caused by heavy storm waters poured into it by the Bear river last night resulted today in the overflowing of the Sacramento river through Fremont weir, near Knight's Landing, Yolo county.

U. S. Meteorologist E. H. Fletcher said between one and a half and two feet of water will pour over the Fremont weir during the next two or three days.

While the river continued to rise slowly from Colusa southward Fletcher said he did not expect it to go over its banks.

A rise of one foot was anticipated at Knight's Landing during the day which will bring the river to a crest a few inches below the flood stage of 30 feet at this point.

At Colusa the river was at 23.4 feet.

Sacramento river gauges showed 19.3 feet a rise of 2.5 feet. Twenty-nine feet is the danger mark here.

Fletcher anticipated fair weather over the week-end and a gradual lowering of the river stages.

Parents Claim 'Lost' Child

It was just a misunderstanding, but it's all fixed now.

And 5-year-old Bonnie Lou Tipton is home with her parents at 823 South Sycamore street. She wasn't really lost anyway.

The child arrived at the local stage office Tuesday night, and no one was there to get her.

Bonnie Lou had been visiting her grandmother in northern California. The grandmother was supposed to wire the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Tipton, when she loaded Bonnie Lou on the stage, but instead of sending a telegram she sent a letter.

The girl beat the letter, and Tipton, assistant pastor of the Spurgeon Memorial church, first learned his daughter had arrived when police located him. The Tiptons moved to Santa Ana from Los Banos last week.

Man Wounded in Filipino Riot

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—George Moore, 64, Modesto, was wounded in the right shoulder, and told emergency hospital attaches that he was caught in the crossfire of a Filipino feud yesterday.

Moore said he was nearly bowled over as an unidentified Filipino dashed from a doorway at Eddy and Taylor streets. Another Filipino dashed after the fleeing man and fired three shots.

One shot nicked Moore in the right shoulder, another hit a parked car, but the intended victim escaped.

Police arrested Tony Santos, 22, Filipino, on a charge of assault with a deadly weapon.

Moore, who said he operated a cannery cafeteria at Modesto, was discharged from the hospital after his shoulder was bandaged.

'Dead Man' Stages Surprise Return

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The report of the death at sea of Claude Lee Barnette, 27, mechanic, was "greatly exaggerated," he explained today to his friends here on returning from Houston, Tex.

The coast guard some time ago listed Barnette as dead after a three-day search for his boat.

Barnette, a native of Santa Ana, was on his way to Houston until he returned to surprise his friends, said he sold his boat immediately after taking a cruise, and departed for Houston.

The coast guard had been unable to locate Barnette's former boat, leading to report he was lost at sea.

APPEAL TOO LATE

SAN FRANCISCO. (AP)—An appeal from a conviction and sentence in a mail fraud case was dismissed by the United States circuit court of appeals today because it was filed one day too late.

The petition was filed by W. F. Dreher, sentenced to five years in prison in February to five years in prison. The case involved the sale of farm lands.

What Kind of Old Person?

By DALE CARNEGIE

What kind of old person are you going to be?

The other day I overheard the small daughter of a friend ask a question which constitutes the most scathing criticism of old age I have ever heard: "Mommie do you really like old people?"

Yet we all know any number of older people who are interested, not curious—and lovable because they are understanding.

After he had passed seventy, Benjamin Franklin negotiated an alliance with France which decided the fate of these thirteen United States, and ten years later was still performing important work.

Benjamin Disraeli, Gladstone and Balfour were living most useful lives in England at an age when most of their contemporaries thought the warmth of their bedroom slippers their most vital topic.

Michael Angelo painted one of the most important pieces of work of all times after he was sixty years of age. I refer, of course, to the "Last Judgment" on the ceiling of the Sistine Chapel of the Vatican in Rome. Titian, too, painted one of his great masterpieces when he was in his sixties, and dying at the age of 91, he said "There is still so much for me to learn."

Can you in your wildest imaginings picture these men as old?

But to come down to our contemporaries. Three years ago, Dr. Anstice Harris enrolled, at the age of seventy, as an art student at Elmira college, and this year she resigned the deanship of that college in order to pursue an art career; and, mind you, she was thrilled because at last she was to have the chance she had always dreamed of.

A few years ago an actor wrote his first play, acted in it and became famous for the first time in his life. Those of you who saw Frank Bacon in "Lightning" will be interested to know that he was past fifty—an age when many actors are making application for admittance to homes for old actors that they may round out their lives in retrospect.

I could go on naming dozens such older people, but will stop with a mention of our own First Lady. Isn't it difficult to realize that Mrs. Roosevelt has passed her fiftieth birthday? And it makes little difference to her what her age is called.

So—it's up to us—the kind of old people we're going to be!

MISSSES TRAIN; HURTS HEAD

He tried to hop a freight out of Santa Ana last night, but he missed.

So Albert Medlin, Lehman, Tex., is in the county hospital today, suffering from two deep cuts in his cheek and a bruised forehead that has swelled into an over-sized headache.

Still dazed, Medlin reported to police station late in the evening that he had fallen from a moving freight "somewhere in the railroad yards." He told officers he was hitch-hiking to Texas and had attempted to board the train.

410 Killed in Holy Land Riots

LONDON. (AP)—William Ormsby-Gore, colonial secretary, told the house of commons today there had been 410 slayings in strife-shaken Palestine between Jan. 1, 1936, and Oct. 31, 1937.

In the same period, the colonial secretary said, there were 113 convictions and seven death sentences of which six were commuted.

Father of Film Actress Dies

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Charles A. Cobb, 79, father-in-law of Gail Patrick, screen actress, died at his home early today following a heart attack. Born in Gallipolis, Ohio, Cobb was in the restaurant business here for 20 years, and formerly was engaged in livestock business in Montana. His son, Robert, is president of the Brown Derby restaurants in Hollywood and Beverly Hills.

RAISES IN FREIGHT ARE REFUSED

WASHINGTON. (AP)—The interstate commerce commission—for the time being at least—refused today to permit increased freight rates from the west coast markets on certain types of perishable shipments.

Railroads had asked permission to charge 10 per cent more than basic rates on perishables, except dates, apples, pears and potatoes, shipped in some types of fiber boxes to which the railroads give only limited approval for use as containers in the long haul across the continent.

The proposed increase would have become effective March 1, 1938.

The commission, however, declined to permit it until the carriers also put into effect a rule permitting limited experimental shipments in such fiber boxes at the basic rate.

'Worry Rock' Is Part of Home

HOLLYWOOD. (AP)—An important feature of the new home that Dick Powell and his wife Joan Blondell, are building will be Joan's "worrying rock."

Joan is having the rock, some eight feet across, shipped from its original location near San Diego. She used to live there and indulge in the joys of worrying on the rock.

"Every woman should have such a rock," Miss Blondell philosophized. "Or at least, a favorite tree or a secluded hillside where she can take her troubles and be alone with them. It's amazing how they will work themselves out under such conditions. I suppose I've sat on this particular rock in its original location for hundreds of hours altogether."

"I'm hoping to resume the habit. Most of my troubles are imaginary, anyway, and a half-hour alone on the worrying rock always used to make things brighter."

EIGHT-FOOT MAN DIES

Peiping's tallest man has died after a long illness. He was Liu Yu-ching, who for over 20 years was ticket collector at the gate of the Botanical Garden. Liu, who was eight feet tall, was considered one of the tallest men in China.

THE SCORE: 13-6

IOWA CITY. (AP)—Iowa football players are tired of being defeated, 13-6, by Big Ten rivals. Purdue defeated Iowa by that score in 1934; Minnesota in 1935; Indiana in 1936, and Wisconsin this year.

On the cleat-torn sod of the Municipal bowl, where many hearts have been warmed and broken, Santa Ana and San Bernardino Junior colleges will wage a rematch for the Eastern conference football championship here a week from tonight.

ODDS and ENDS

By PAUL WRIGHT

When Blas Mercurio, long-legged quarterback, streaked 20 yards around right end for the Dons' first touchdown he took the Eastern J. C. conference scoring championship with him against Fullerton here yesterday.

Mercurio's six points placed him one ahead of San Bernardino's Bobby Templeton, 37 to 36. . . Templeton was the victim when his Indians received a forfeit from Citrus, an eleven against whom the great back probably would have scored several times.

The Don-Yellowjacket game lacked the thrills of those spin-ticklers in 1929 and 1933, but it set a new high in attendance—10,000.

Capt. Martin Akeyson, 210-pound left tackle, is the only hold-over regular on the Long Beach Poly outfit that won the Southern California prep title last fall, and begins defense of that crown against our Saints here tomorrow afternoon. . . Nine of the regulars were graduated, and a tenth—Willard Curry—was killed in a shipyard's explosion two weeks before practice began.

Long Beach boasts a giant negro end named Ivory Lane, and another dusky regular who plays quarterback, Loducky McGowan. . . Clifton Berryman (brother of Bob and Jack of Poly grid fame) plays halfback. . . The Saints lost to Long Beach, 13-2, in an early practice game, but they fumbled at crucial times, and it will be an entirely different Santa Ana club the Hares encounter here tomorrow. . . Long Beach has been concentrating its defense on how to stop the Saints' smashing full-back, Bill Musick. . . If the Saints win, it will be Long Beach's second defeat of the season. Loyola turned the trick with a perfect pass play in Poly's third game.

BERRY, BLACK PANTHER WIN

Possibility of a match between the Black Panther, one of the greatest negro wrestlers in the business, and "Wild Red" Berry, conqueror of Carlos Rodriguez, looms at the Orange County Athletic club.

Berry scored a straight-fall victory over Rodriguez before a holiday crowd here last night, winning the first in 7:14 with an arm wing spread and the second with an Indian death grip in 9:26. The Black Panther, first negro to wrestle at the Highway 101 arena, conquered Joe Sabo in 12:52 with an Irish whip.

Danny Savich, the former Utah grider, won over Texan Les Wolfe in 9:53 with a body slam in the opener. The famed "Bull" Montana was a surprise referee.

continued after one of Aubrey Minter's passes was intercepted by Ed Stanley, who romped from the 31 to the 8. Beall lugged the left over left tackle to the goal line. Then in rapid-fire succession, Cook's two-team variety put the skids under the Yellowjackets with two touchdowns in the final four minutes of the half.

The starting backfield combination of Blas Mercurio and Les McLennan at quarter and fullback turned in the first score. After the Dons reeled off yardage from their own 28 to the 45, Beall punted to Hale on the Fullerton 12, Hale returning to the 24. On third down with 19 yards to go Allison faked a kick but his pass was intercepted by Mac Beall who ran from the 23 to the Fullerton 10 before being stopped. A clipping penalty set the Dons back to the 20.

On first down Mercurio faded to pass but finding his receiver covered, cut-ran the entire team around right end for the score. The touchdown sent Mercurio out by one point into the scoring lead of the loop over Bobby Templeton of San Bernardino. A pass conversion was missed.

Trojans, Irish In 12th Tilt At South Bend

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (P)—The Irish and the Trojans have the major midwest football stage all to themselves tomorrow and may put on one of the greatest shows of the season.

Some 50,000 gridiron fans—the hardy variety who like "just one more" to top off the Big Ten pigskin spree which ended a week ago—will be on hand to watch Notre Dame close its season against Southern California. And although both teams have presented staunch defenses throughout most of the season, past performances of these intersectional rivals indicate a rousing offensive skirmish.

The Trojan-Irish rivalry, which goes into its 12th straight game, has been hard fought and the producer of some of football's greatest thrills. The teams played a 13-13 tie last year at Los Angeles and the Irish didn't like that a bit. They made 19 first downs to one on a penalty for Southern California.

The series stands six wins for Notre Dame, four for Southern California and the 1936 tie.

BULLDOGS DRUB YANKEES, 27-0

LOS ANGELES. (P)—The Los Angeles Bulldogs, members of the American Professional football league, remained an untied, undefeated team today.

Showing the same power and deception which have netted them eleven straight victories, the Bulldogs swamped the New York Yankees, 27-0, before 15,000 fans in Gilmore stadium in a Turkey day game.

PASTOR FIGHTS NATIE MANN

NEW YORK. (P)—Bob Pastor and Natie Mann, two of the up-and-coming big boys of the fight business, tangle for 10 rounds or less in Madison Square Garden tonight for the right to survive in what now amounts to a heavy-weight "elimination" series.

With Joe Louis and Maxie Schmeling slated to fight for the title next year, provided, of course, that Der Mox hands Harry Thomas what for in their little get-together Dec. 12, the challenging field is narrowed down to the youngsters on the way up, and a few of the older war horses, such as Max Baer and Jimmy Braddock, along with the always threatening Tommy Farr.

Three years ago—Stanford named to represent West in Rose Bowl for second year in row.

ALABAMA 9-7 WINNER IN BOWL MARCH

NEW YORK. (P)—Propelled by the accurate toe of gangling Hayward Sanford, Alabama's unbeaten eleven lands plumb in the middle of the most muddled Rose Bowl situation in years.

Young Mr. Sanford booted a field goal for the Alabama boys yesterday to beat Vanderbilt, and the harried gentlemen who must pick the outland representative called for another gross of aspirin. If Pitt beats Duke and Fordham does the same to New York university, Saturday, there will be three major claimants.

The 9 to 7 triumph admits Alabama into the charmed circle but Duke stands in the way of Pitt. The Blue Devils are no small obstacle. They are tough on attack and "up" for the game. Fordham on the other hand has a small obstacle, Dr. Stevens' violet operatives being noted more for cleverness than size, but the obstacle was just as small a year ago and the Fordham's haven't got over that 7-6 defeat yet.

All this is all very important to the teams that hope to be tapped for the Rose Bowl society, but the biggest crowd of the day will congregate at Philadelphia for the Army-Navy meeting.

CALIFORNIA'S OFFICIALS ARRIVE IN PASADENA. (P)—University of California's Rose Bowl officials were due here today to shed some light on the identity of the opponent of the Golden Bears in the annual intersectional gridiron battle New Year's day.

Ken Priestley, graduate manager and key man of California's immediate athletic plans, was slated to arrive from Berkeley and announce—or not announce—Cal's Rose Bowl foe.

Other bowl games about the country, including New Orleans Sugar, Dallas Cotton and Miami's Orange, were politely ignored as the Rose Bowl organization prepared to entertain another sell-out crowd here Jan. 1, regardless of whom California selects.

On hand to greet the Berkeley delegation, coming here for the first time since California last captured a Pacific coast conference title in 1929, was Hal C. Reynolds of the local Tournament of Roses committee. He said he hoped California would not prolong selection of an opponent too long.

Each arriving train and automobile brought more of the 102,000 persons, including notables from almost every state, who weeks ago bought all of the tickets available for this traditional game that annually brings a grand climax to the football season.

Many of the holiday crowd of 61,000 that yesterday witnessed Cornell's spectacular 34-to-20 triumph over Pennsylvania remained in the city to see their second big game in three days.

The familiar warning against counterfeit tickets was issued as speculators were reported to be asking anywhere from two to 10 times the face value of a $4.40 ticket depending on the location of the seats.

The Army players, favored to win, were grim-faced and apparently on edge. Words were at a minimum as they hustled from their train into private automobiles for a quick trip to their suburban headquarters at Green Hill Farms.

Today a year ago—Washington trounced Washington State 40-0 to win Pacific Coast conference title and Rose Bowl bid. New York U. upset Fordham, 7-6. Alabama whipped Vanderbilt 14-6. Penn beat Cornell 14-6.

Prep Elevens To Clash Tomorrow

Citrus Belt league champions in their first year, Santa Ana's Saints will aim for higher glory at the Municipal bowl tomorrow afternoon. They engage their 1936 playmate, Long Beach Poly of the Coast league, in the first round of the C. I. F. football playoffs. The kick-off will be at 2:15. Four-time champion of the Coast league, recognized as the strongest prep alliance in the Southland, Orian Landreth's invading Jack-rabbits will carry the edge, but Bill Foote's Saints are believed capable of springing an upset.

The eligibility of Melvin Barron, second-string halfback, was established by the C. I. F. this week, and the Saints will be free to use the elongated junior against Long Beach, Foote said. Santa Ana ordered an investigation when Pomona High school, which ended in a percentage tie with the Saints for the title, reported the rumor that Barron had enrolled in classes at Franklin High school in Los Angeles this semester before returning to Santa Ana. Barron had planned to re-enter Franklin, but did not register there, it was learned.

Long Beach, which defeated Glendale 21-0 in the Southern California finals last year, will bring here a squad of only six lettermen, and one of them—Quarterback Gene Pickett—will be on the sidelines with a back injury.

Bowen Is Threat
Hal Bowen, 180-pound fullback transfer from San Pedro, will be the visitors' outstanding ball-carrier. Staidout on the Long Beach line is Capt. Martin (One Man Gang) Akeyson, 210-pound left tackle.

The Saints will rely on a fighting forward wall; a pile-driving fullback in Bill Musick; their great passing combination of Eugene Hamaker and Milton Smith; and the speed of Halfback Wayne Piper.

Teaming with Musick, Hamaker and Piper in the starting backfield will be either Bernard Robinson or Ralph Pagenkopp at quarter. The lanky Smith and Acting Capt. Don Warhurst will be at end, Larry Stump and Monte Klepper at tackle, Dick Horton and Bob Maddock at guard and Bob Webb at center. Harry Ashen's right leg has responded to treatment, and he may be able to play part-time at the pivot post.

The Saints will be entering the C. I. F. playoffs for the first time since 1932. In that season they lost to Inglewood, 14-0, in the finals. Santa Ana won the Southland title in 1931.

AMERICAN WOMEN MOST BEAUTIFUL

Big Feet Only Cause For Alarm Says Expert

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—Despite a tendency toward big feet, America is producing "the most beautiful women in the world," Dr. Earl H. Bell, University of Nebraska anthropologist, said today.

"The beautiful French women are a myth," Dr. Bell said in an interview. "Occasionally you find a French woman who is beautiful, but most of them are not. The Great mass of American girls, from the girls at the department store to the most elite, are much more beautiful than girls of foreign countries."

Dr. Bell said this was "especially true of older women. European women tend either to become rawboned or fat and sloppy as they grow older while the American woman tends to hold her youthful figure."

He said feet are growing larger in this country, and cited as proof surveys made at Vassar and other girls' colleges which disclosed "the modern girl wears shoes at least two sizes larger than the shoes her grandmother wore."

PLANE CRASH PROVES FATAL

RIVERSIDE, (AP)—Frederick T. Howard, 30, died here yesterday of injuries he sustained last Monday when the plane he was piloting crashed near the Riverside airport.

Howard, who is survived by his widow and three children, was the only son of the late Frederick B. Howard, Brockton, Mass., financier, who died while a winter resident here with his wife, Edith T. Howard, in 1933.

At that time the son flew across the continent to reach his father's bedside before he died.

Coroner Ben F. White announced no inquest would be held, as Howard was a licensed pilot and flying alone when his plane crashed.

Shoe Thieves Must Be Puzzled Or One-Legged

LOS ANGELES, (AP)—To get much use out of the 20 sample cases full of shoes they stole from a parked automobile early today the thieves must conform to exacting limitations.

They must be one legged men with small feet. The 400 shoes were all for the right foot.

Fined for Giving Ginger to Horse

TORONTO, (AP)—Ewell Lane, manager of the stables of Mrs. Ruth Ludington Carpenter of Rochester, N. Y., today was fined $100 and costs or 30 days in jail for administering chewed ginger to a carriage horse entered in competition at the Royal Winter Fair Horse show.

Humane society officials said the ginger caused suffering to the horse, and that the practice was becoming too common. It is administered to make the animals more spirited.

Mrs. Archer's ninth grade Hobbies class is coming along fine. On Monday they have a reading period. On Tuesday they have reports and on Wednesday and Friday they have a work period. Soon they will have an exhibit of the work done in school. Among some of the things will be airplanes, oil painting, sewing, coin collecting, picture developing, a match cover collection, many bullet and shell collections and two collections of movie stars. Also on the program is a pageant of music, singing, and dancing. It is hoped by all that we shall have the new auditorium in which to give this Christmas program.

Last Wednesday a tea was held for teachers and librarians of Santa Ana at Lathrop Junior High school. The following people took part: Charmon Carlson sang "Will You Remember?" and "Rose Marie." Sam Campbell sang "Amapola" in Spanish. There were two violin solos by Marjorie Keeler.

Last year the Junior Red Cross organization started a children's library at the Orange county hospital. For school children who have to spend long days, weeks and even months in the tubercular or pediatric wards.

This year Lathrop Juniors are helping in this worthwhile project by sending books they have outgrown and contributing toward the purchase of new ones.

Mrs. Sinke's L-9 foods class have been working hard. They have just finished making noodle soup. The first group whose hostess is Ruth Mary Murphy, gave a very good meal for Mary Hoover's second group. It consisted of fruit cocktail, lettuce and tomato salad, spaghetti with meat balls and cherry pie. It was served last Wednesday noon and proved to be very good.

NEW OIL WELLS TOTAL 1464

SAN FRANCISCO, (AP)—R. D. Bush, state oil supervisor, reported today the 25 new oil wells started last week brought the total to 1464 for this year. This compares with 987 in the like period last year, and tops the number for any full year on records.

Of the 28 notices for new drillings last week, 12 were in the Wilmington field, 4 in Santa Maria valley, 3 in the Mt. Poso field, 2 at Rio Bravo and the others scattered.

Drillers abandoned 10 wells last week, making 473 abandonments this year against 420 last year.

Movie Homes Are 'Degrading' Is Claim of Group

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—The American Institute of Decorators wonders whether houses, as Hollywood furnishes them on the screen, are a "degrading influence on the rest of the world."

Paul Frankl, a member of the local chapter of the A. I. D., has an idea that folks too often take their ideas for home furnishings from things they see in the movies.

"And such ideas," said he, "are not always quite right."

The A. I. D. will discuss the alleged "degrading influence" at a meeting here next Tuesday.

"We hope, as a result of this discussion, to show the movie makers that their tremendous educational force can do much to improve the American public's taste in interior decorating," Frankl said today.

DECREASE SHOWN IN RELIEF ROLL

The State Relief office in this community for the week ending Friday was assisting 272 fewer persons than for a corresponding period of last year, according to records in the office of Mrs. Katherine Handley, administrator here.

The Friday figure showed 853 cases as compared to 1130 last year at the same time.

Mrs. Handley points out that a number of persons have been turned away from the local office in the past few days owing to the fact they did not qualify under the rules and regulations set down by the state.

Three principal rules must be adhered to in going on relief under this agency, Mrs. Handley says: a person must be in need; must be unemployable and must have one year residence in the state and county.

Where persons applying are unable to comply with the rulings, they are referred to other agencies which may be able to take care of them.

Sea Cook Strikers Return to Work

SEATTLE, (AP)—Alaska steamship operators announced a settlement today of the dispute between the three lines serving the territory and the marine cooks and stewards' union. The men will return to work under the former conditions of employment, thus ending a six-day tieup of Alaska shipping.

Miss Muffet Tangles With Spider, Loses

HOLLYWOOD, (AP)—Little Jane Quigley of the movies has outdone Little Miss Muffet of the story book.

The tuffet-sitting Muffet girl was only scared by a spider who sat down beside her like this. Six-year-old Jane tripped over a cable on a movie set, where she is working with Bobby Breen, and struck her right knee on a spider.

A movie spider is an electrical gadget to connect wires. Miss Quigley was hurt so badly that two stitches had to be taken on her knee.

She was back at work today, bandaged and spider-wise.

DEMOCRATS IN SESSION

Members of the directorate of the California Democratic assembly of Orange county will meet at 6:45 o'clock Monday evening in the I. O. O. F. hall in Fullerton for their monthly session.

Dr. Elmer Nelson of Los Angeles is to be the principal speaker. Dinner will be served by members of the Rebekah lodge. A program of music and entertainment is being arranged by Ben Carey, vice chairman of the Fullerton assembly district. Chester I. Dale, chairman, will preside at the meeting of the directorate. All members of the assembly are extended a cordial invitation to attend the dinner.

School Directory Being Distributed

Distribution of Santa Ana Junior college's student directory will be resumed Monday, Editor Mary Knoche said today.

First group of directories was issued Wednesday. A total of 100 have already been distributed. The directory contains the names and addresses of all students at the college. It also includes the names and addresses of faculty and administrators. Another item in the book is the list of advisers for extra-curricular activities.

Miss Knoche was assisted by Ruth Jump and George Hooper, while John H. McCoy was faculty adviser. It was printed in the college Fine Arts Press under the sponsorship of the Press club.

BLAZE ROUTS SCHOOL PUPILS

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—Thirteen hundred students of the Luther Burbank Junior High school marched out of their class rooms in orderly fashion yesterday when a fire broke out in a tunnel directly in front of the building.

The fire was caused, fire officials said, when a power crane broke through a main gas line. Friction started the blaze. The face and hands of one crane operator were burned. The fire burned for some time, but damage was averted because it was an open flame, firemen said.

Willard School Notes

Outstanding among the November exhibits now on display are one on transportation by Mrs. Louise Wright and one on western mammals by Mrs. Ruth Low. On the shelves devoted to air transportation are a flying scale plane by Robert Wassum, a racing model of a plane made by Elvin Hoots, and a solid model army plane by Jackie Mathews.

E. B. Sharpley, agent of the Southern Pacific railroad, supplied several models of locomotives, "Tom Thumb," built in 1830; "The William Galloway," in 1837; "C. P. Huntington," 1863; "Empire State Express," 1893; the Mikado type locomotive, 1922, and a modern streamlined locomotive, 1936.

"These model locomotives give some idea of the development in American railroad engines from 1830 to the present time," Mrs. Wright commented.

"They are as nearly correct to the original as possible," Mrs. Wright said. Mrs. Low's exhibit on western mammals is proving very popular. Among the specimens are the golden-mantled chipmunk from Mt. Pine, a native California chipmunk, a spotted skunk, an antelope chipmunk, a yellow round-tailed squirrel, a desert kangaroo rat, a desert kit fox, a kangaroo rat, Californian valley wood rat, ash brush rabbit, Oregon mole, a pocket gopher, a San Diego meadow mouse, and Beechey's ground squirrel. These mammals are mounted in taxidermy, draped in pine boughs and needles, realistic of their native haunts.

The comparison of local and Los Angeles papers was the topic of four weeks study in Mrs. Vivian Meeks' social living class. Examples of illustrations, make-up, headlines, special columns, news stories, and featured articles were brought to class for analysis.

"The History of the Newspaper Game" has been the last of our study in this type of work," Mrs. Meeks explained. "This discussion was taken up to encourage interest in the reading of current events," she added.

"Our boys' vocation class is now preparing to branch out into the different fields to which the boys are best suited," Miss Mary Jane Steel, instructor, stated in a recent interview.

Between Thanksgiving and Christmas the boys are going to make carvings pertaining to the particular line of work which they find most interesting. They have been doing research work in the library for their books, consisting of pictures, newspaper clippings, and an article in their own words on that subject. Each pupil will give a short talk on his book, explaining the main facts in it, and telling why he chose that particular career.

Miss Wyllys Anderson, P. E. teacher, announced today that she is holding a contest for her three classes, during the last two weeks of the volleyball season. This contest is being held every day in Miss Anderson's classes and each team plays a different squad every day of the week. At the end of the season the winning team in each class will be given a free period of the day they have P. E. last period. Miss Anderson has two ninth grade classes and one seventh.

Adult Education

Three school weeks until Christmas. These are busy days for everyone. Many times night class attendance falls off this time of the year until the class has to be discontinued. Your cooperation in keeping up the attendance will be appreciated.

At Christmas time, nearly everyone wishes that he could print a little better. The commercial art class will give special attention to the printing messages, signs and showcards for holiday use. You are invited to enroll. The class meets Thursdays in room 116 of the Willard Junior High school. There are three more meetings before Christmas.

The community singing class on Monday evenings has the best time. Everyone knows everyone and where he comes from—Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Ohio, Alabama, Louisiana and even Canada are represented. Better come and enjoy the enthusiasm.

Miss Isabel Polkinghorne of Ontario, Canada, who is visiting her aunt, Mrs. A. L. Trace, has attended several evening classes.

The class in blue-print reading is going to visit a commercial blue-print shop Dec. 8. C. E. Hayes of the Orange County Blue-Print shop, has invited the class to meet in his shop at 107 North Broadway. A limited number of visitors can be arranged for by calling Mr. Parks or the Lathrop office. The class will go directly to the blue-print shop instead of coming to the school.

The sketching class is moving from room 39 of the Lathrop building to room 14. The meeting on Nov. 30 will be in the new room.

We have received many inquiries about the new trade classes. Definite information is not available now but will be released as soon as possible.

The citizenship class is entering its home stretch. Their day in court will come the middle of December.

Please note the class for custodians meets in Bungalow D in the rear of the administration building, 1012 North Main street, Tuesday, Nov. 30.

Most of the girls are working hard for the free period.

A beautiful quilt made by Barbara Senn, was outstanding among the many hobbies exhibited on hobby day, recently observed by Miss Veda Ball's eighth grade girls' vocation class. Jean Hunter and Janet Coffing had very interesting stamp collections. Water color paintings were shown by Adele Lewis and among the various handicrafts displayed was Ruth Hutchinson's knitting. Scrap books proved very popular and "Flapper Fanny" cut-outs and cartoons by Wortman received a large share of attention.

Willard's beginning and advanced typing classes, under the direction of Mrs. Louise Wright, and Mrs. Vivian Meeks will begin their five-minute tests to be given once a week, at the end of the quarter.

Awards will be given according to the grade attained on the tests. In the beginners' classes, small certificates may be earned by typing 20 words per minute. For large certificates, a beginner must type 25 words per minute. In the advanced classes, small certificates are obtained by typing 25 words per minute, while large certificates are earned by typing 35 words.

Bronze, silver, and gold pins will also be given, requiring ratings as high as 40 words per minute for the beginners and 50 for advanced.

Rita Feliz, Mexican Girl Reserve president, announced today that tap dancing lessons will be given to members at future meetings. Their past meetings have been spent on craft work, such as making silhouettes and slippers, Rita announced today.

Art needle work, on which they have been engaged for the past two weeks, is now being completed in Miss Greene's eighth grade clothing classes. In the ninth grade classes, the girls are making pajamas of cotton, flannel, and various cotton printed materials. Their next problem will be that of gayly printed cotton dresses, according to Miss Greene, instructor.

Monitors for the attendance and main offices were announced today by Miss Margaret Ragsdale and Mrs. Dorothy Weakly. Ferle Morrison is the first block monitor for the attendance office. Jack Hantsharger, third block; Joy Crouse, fourth block; Geneva Sawyer, fifth block; and Beverly Harris, sixth block.

Ben Schegel is the first block monitor for the main office; Ted Finster, third block; Beatrice Holman, fourth block; and Dorothy Tubbs, fifth block.

Industries is the subject which Mrs. Mabel Budd's Low-7-W social science class has been studying since the beginning of the semester. The class has been drawing interesting graphs, diagrams, and pictures pertaining to the production of wheat, cotton, corn, cattle raising, oil, steel, and coal.

"We intend to continue our study of industries for some time. The students seem very interested in their work," Mrs. Budd remarked.

Pastor Addresses Kiwanis Club

An inspirational Thanksgiving talk by the Rev. Harry Owings, pastor of the First Baptist church, highlighted the Santa Ana Kiwanis club's weekly luncheon in the Masonic temple Wednesday.

President R. B. Newcom conducted the meeting, and Dr. J. E. Paul was chairman of the day.

BABY BRIDE GOES TO SCHOOL

CHICAGO. (AP)—Blue-eyed Marion Horton, 14, went back to her sixth grade classes today, her marriage to Harry Ruud, 24, annulled by a judge who said she "should be playing with dolls."

Superior Judge John J. Lupe granted a plea for annulment asked by the child bride's father, Waverly Horton, a golf professional, who is estranged from his wife.

The girl testified that Ruud in obtaining a marriage license gave her age as 21. Her father said she was married by a justice of the peace in suburban Park Ridge June 29, but never lived with her husband.

MWD TO BUILD LARGEST FENCE

LOS ANGELES. (AP)—The Metropolitan Water district let contracts today for 152 miles of chain link fence, which it claims is the largest job of its kind ever projected.

The cost will be more than $400,000.

Sixty-three miles of open canals on the Colorado river aqueduct will have a six-foot fence on either side, and 28 additional miles will be built around reservoirs to keep out livestock and human trespassers.

RHEUMATIC SUFFERERS!

A Personal Message for Every Man and Woman in Santa Ana Who Suffers from the Agony of Rheumatism--Neuritis--Neuralgia

Rheumatic pain has crippled more people than all the wars of history! This terrifying illness strikes down young and old alike. It makes your home a torture chamber, and your life a failure.

But at last there is a medicine which actually RELIEVES that terrible agony. Read carefully every single word of what follows, for it may be one of the most important messages you will ever read in your entire life!

A Doctor's Discovery

Twenty years ago... during the ravages of the World war... a physician in the U. S. Army saw for himself the wretched, hopeless misery caused by rheumatic pain. He saw arms and legs stiffened in pain—lives wrecked—just as surely as if they had been struck by shells. He consecrated himself to this problem with every ounce of his strength.

At last—to his inexpressible joy—he demonstrated a formula that attacks and relieves the pain from the INSIDE. This formula is called RUX Compound.

Uric acid (the same foul, poisonous substance you pass off through the kidneys) forms sharp, jagged crystals inside your muscles! Whenever you move, these crystals press against your raw flesh, and he found that this pain must be reached from the INSIDE—through the blood stream.

What RUX Does for You

Within four minutes after you take a dose of RUX it will begin to be absorbed into your blood stream. These amazing salicylates reach your inflamed, aching muscles and act on the pain from the inside.

Some people who have tried RUX were so tortured with rheumatic pain (in arms, shoulders and knees) that they could hardly move, and then RUX relieved these attacks almost as if by magic. Any modern physician will confirm the remarkable results of the salicylates contained in this formula.

Make the RUX Test Today

If you are suffering from the agony of rheumatism, neuritis, neuralgia—if your life is now a failure, through this sickness and pain—you owe it to yourself and family to try this great scientific medicine. Nearly 100,000 California men and women have used RUX just in the past 12 months! Ask for RUX at the Owl Drug Co.

EDEN ROAD OIL SCANDAL NEARS END

Judgment on the county's now-famous Eden oil case may be entered soon—without further testimony or attorney's arguments.

This was hinted today as Superior Judge Benjamin F. Warner of San Bernardino, who heard the case arising from charges during the 1936 political campaign, prepared to read a written report by Dr. Arnold O. Beckman, chemist of the California Institute of Technology.

Dr. Beckman was appointed last June by Judge Warner, who heard the case here, to test samples of road oil sold the county by the Eden Oil company. Judge Warner hinted that either the oil or samples given the county road department had been tampered with.

A stipulation on file today in superior court puts attorneys for both sides on record as approving a written report rather than a report from the witness stand by Dr. Beckman. Provided Judge Warner wishes to decide the case on the evidence, all of which is in, there will be no further court sessions and Judge Warner's decision will be filed along with the report.

The Eden firm, in which Don Jerome, son of former Supervisor W. C. Jerome, was a partner, is suing the county for $1729 for road oil furnished the road department last year. The county has retaliated with a cross-complaint for $3300, charging the oil was full of mud and water and damaged roads on which it was used.

TURKEYS IN THE DOGHOUSE
PHILADELPHIA. — Six plump turkeys got mixed up in traffic violations and so their lives have been saved—at least temporarily.

Two men told conflicting stories about how they obtained the main dish for their Thanksgiving dinner when they were questioned after driving through a red light.

The men went to jail; the turkeys to the city dog pound.

Norton had some narrow escapes before he perfected his invention. Once he fell in a creek and nearly drowned; once a dog bit him.

I JUST FOUND OUT— Cleanup Men For Sudden Death

By MILLARD BROWNE

Bloody streets, dismembered corpses and tangled wrecks are mere daily routine—and curious crowds are just nuisances who get in the way—to a hardened group of local garbage men.

"Cleanup Men for Sudden Death" is the way Reader's Digest probably would refer to the wrecking crews who "cover" accidents and sweep up whatever the undertakers, police and doctors leave behind.

Ambulance chasers? Sure, but they have a purpose. Tow-car men are more objective than morbid, yet they can relate personal experiences with some of the bloodiest cases on record at the coroner's office.

They've picked cars and bodies out of Newport bay and Santa Ana river, they've dug autos from sand that's buried them nearly out of sight, and they've shoveled up flesh and metal so battered they couldn't tell which was which.

George McConnell at the Grand Central garage, first outfit in the county to specialize in tow-car calls, claims his men are called out about 150 times a month. A third of the calls are for crashes so serious that at least one car couldn't move under its own power.

The 100 other calls each month are pleasant relief from the morbid side of his business. Some are rather funny, after it's all over.

McConnell once rambled half way across the county with all his wrecking equipment to tell a man his car wouldn't go because he had the wrong key in the ignition lock. The right one was on the same key-ring.

Most calls are for flat tires, minor fender dentings, stuck starters, etc., and about 50 per cent are at night. "A lot of the serious ones are between midnight and 6 a. m.," McConnell comments. "That's when most of the crazy driving's done."

McConnell's seen a few miraculous escapes from death—and a few equally-miraculous fatalities.

A man and two women were heading for San Diego one night, he recalled. The car hit something, turned over, and the passengers all got up, laughed, and the woman driving was the only one with a scratch. She had a small hole in her head, was cautioned to go to a hospital and started off. Before the car reached the hospital, though, her jovial girl friend in the rear — the one without a scratch—was dead.

More fortunate was the lady who plowed into a guard rail, drove an eight-by-eight timber twice through the fender, through the cowl, and into the front seat hard enough to knock it into the rear of the car. The woman had one tiny scratch—where the timber had grazed her leg as it went past. McConnell said the car was a total wreck.

Another woman bashed into a bridge railing head-on near Laguna Beach a few years ago. The steel rail split the front end of the car in half, ripped its way through the driver's compartment, and came to rest against the stomach of a man sitting in the middle. None of the three occupants was scratched.

Twice has McConnell sent divers into the ocean to drag out wrecked cars. Once a car went over a bridge at Bayshore camp into 35 feet of water, killed a man and pinned him in the car until a diver went down. Another time, two youths in a coupe tumbled into the 20-foot-deep water off Belmont shore, zipped a zipper in the rear window and floated up to safety. The coupe was salvaged next day.

Actual business of cleaning up accident messes takes from one to four hours, sometimes less. But tow-car crews usually arrive while officers are still investigating, make themselves useful until human remains have been taken away, pictures and measurements made.

McConnell's seen crowds numbering well over 1000 gather at accidents, claims nearly every one stays until the last piece of shattered glass has been swept up.

Crowds get in the way, he points out, but that isn't the biggest trouble. It's stealing that gives wreckers their major headaches. Wrecked cars to many curious spectators seem like fair game. If they see something in the car they figure they could use, they won't be bashful about taking it, complains McConnell. "While I was standing on one side of a car talking to the owner after an accident," he relates, "someone swiped a flashlight from the other side."

Search tow-car crews usually don't do their work until officers and doctors are through, there have been times when they made direct attempts to save lives. One of these tries was successful, two were too late.

A car and sugar beet truck tangled at Edinger and Bristol streets a few years ago, dumping the load of beets squarely onto one of the occupants. While wreckers were shoveling beets off the man, everyone thought he was dead. Unconscious, apparently hopelessly crushed, he was rushed to a hospital, was walking around "good as new" three days later.

Another time, a wrecking crew was called to Laguna canyon, where a car had died into a gully, pinned a woman underneath and wedged against the sides so the gathering crowd couldn't budge it. The tow-car quickly lifted it, but the woman was dead.

The Grand Central crew answered one call at Tustin, arrived after doctors and ambulances had left and found a body underneath that everyone had missed. They looked it over, then called for a hearse, not an ambulance.

Worst mess McConnell's men have cleaned up during 14 years of tow-car work was on West Seventeenth street five years ago. The cars and remains were scattered for a quarter of a mile.

Many calls are misleading, and tow-car men have spent half a day looking for the location erratically described by panicky accident victims. Some visiting motorists crack-up, of course, and actually don't know where they are.

Longest trip made by a Santa Ana wrecking crew was to Las Vegas, Nev., though others have been made to Phoenix, Ariz., down into Old Mexico, and up to the ridge. It cost McConnell $136 once to get an old car out of Mexico. The government charged him full duty on a new car, just because he was towing

FAMILY FEUD CASE AIRED IN COURT

A brother and sister, fighting over the custody of their incompetent sister and her two infant children, rested their cases today in superior court.

Superior Judge James L. Allen took under advisement late Wednesday the fight of Mildred C. Everett and Frank Everett of Garden Grove to get guardianship letters over Mrs. Mina Schurr and her two daughters, Lesandra, 2, and Donna, 1.

Mrs. Schurr was adjudged incompetent recently by the court, and Everett is objecting to his sister's petition that she be appointed guardian. Mrs. Schurr's husband is deceased. Everett also has filed a petition for guardianship on his own behalf.

Judge Allen heard testimony about the various family quarrels following charges by Everett that his sister, during trial of Mrs. Schurr's case, had maintained "she was not insane but was hypnotized." His objections to her complaint as guardian were in grounds that Miss Everett is "not competent to act as guardian."

Cherry Winner At Toastmasters

David Cherry of Newport Beach, and President of Smedley No. 1 Chapter of Toastmasters, won first place in the speaking contest of the club at Danziger's cafe, Wednesday evening. The topic of his talk was "It's in the Scribble," in which he described the results of an analysis made of his own handwriting.

Second place went to Daniel K. Brown of Santa Ana upon the topic, "The Gospel," a timely talk upon the art of public speaking. Other speakers and topics for the evening were: Dr. R. Buell, "Just Relax"; Robert N. Scove, "What, Another McIntyre?" Dr. J. P. Davis, "Success Often Follows Failure"; W. W. Cadwallader, "Thanksgiving"; and George F. Angie, "Diamonds in Your Back Yard."

J. Lee Woods presided as Toastmaster. Supt. H. O. Ensign of Newport Beach, acted as general critic.

Daniel K. Brown inducted two new members, J. B. Walden and Warren C. Mendenhall, both of Santa Ana.

Approval of the club was given to the membership applications of Roy Gwaltney of Santa Ana and Omer Williams of Garden Grove.

Rancher Leaves $13,000 Estate

Albert Kozina, who died last Nov. 2, left joint tenancy property worth $13,900, it was revealed today in a report by James B. Utt, state inheritance tax appraiser. The property consists of a 20-acre Orange county ranch and two lots in Redondo Beach.

the machine out instead of driving it under its own power.

Sidelight to the wrecking business: They've used horses to help the trucks, and they've used trucks to help horses. A saddle-horse was sent into Black Star canyon one wet winter to get two boys who were marooned when their car stalled. And a horse once was lifted out of a deep concrete irrigation bin into which it had fallen by a wrecking crane.

$1000 PRIZE FOR NATIVE WRITERS

An opportunity to win a $1000 award is being offered to young native California writers by the James D. Phelan Awards in Literature and Art, as announced by the trustees of the Phelan estate today. A fellowship of $1000 will be awarded by a committee of award to the young writer entered in the competition who is judged most promising in the field of fiction, biography, historical narrative or verse narrative. The competition is open to both men and women between the ages of 20 to 35 who are native born citizens of California. Writers of the short story and of lyrical verse will not be eligible this year.

This award is made annually as a result of a bequest made by the late Senator James D. Phelan whose purpose was to encourage native Californian talent in creative literature and art. Applications are received from all sections of the state. It is not necessary that the creative work submitted be concerned with the California scene, historical or modern.

Applications for the fellowships and information may be obtained from the office of the James D. Phelan Awards in Literature and Art, 658 Phelan building, San Francisco. Applications are due not later than Feb. 15 and the winners will be announced on or before April 1.

Milkmen, Customer To Get More Sleep

The old order changeth—and so with Santa Ana's creameries, which announced today they believed the end of the horse and buggy era had arrived.

Excelsior Creamery, in notices to each of its customers today, asked their approval of its plans for abandoning early morning delivery service, and substituting one afternoon service in its stead.

"The early morning service," the creamery said, "is a source of annoyance. Under modern methods of caring for milk, it is no longer necessary to deliver the breakfast milk before dawn. Our milk will keep 24 hours in perfect condition."

Drivers will contact customers next week, the management said, to ascertain response.

The character, as created in the novels of Clarence E. Mulford, was so well-known by millions of Mulford readers that great care was necessary to find a prototype that would be acceptable to them. Boyd's choice has met with the approval of the Mulford readers as well as those of the movie fans judging by the success of these popular Western stories.

"Big Squirt," an all star comedy, will be shown with "North of the Rio Grande." A Porky cartoon and "Secret Agent 19" and a newsreel complete the entertaining program.

PATROLMAN TO PREPARE FOR OPERA

Trip Partly Financed By Music Lovers

Orange county's singing cop will sail next month in search of new worlds to conquer. George Stinson, who thrilled Santa Anans for several years with his golden tenor while a member of the local highway patrol force, announced from Sacramento yesterday that he will take a year's leave of absence from his job.

While gone Stinson will study in Italy under masters of voice training. His trip is being partly financed by music lovers of the San Francisco bay area, where Stinson has been stationed recently.

Stinson was given his start in the musical world by the late Madame Schumann-Heink, who heard him sing, and proclaimed him a great natural tenor. Madame Schumann-Heink interested herself in his career and assisted in financing early lessons.

Stinson will sail sometime after Dec. 15 for Europe, accompanied by his accompanist-wife, his son, Jack, 16, and Director Gaetano Merola of the San Francisco Opera company.

Until then he will remain as a member of the patrol squad for the San Francisco-Oakland bay bridge.

Daughter Of Supervisor Married

Brilliant contrast of vivid scarlet poinsettias against background of fern and tall white-tapered candelabra made the Santa Ana Wedding chapel an effective setting late yesterday afternoon for the wedding of Miss Lida Mitchell, daughter of Supervisor and Mrs. John C. Mitchell, and Elbert L. Smith of Anaheim.

The bride was charming in a princess-style frock of white cut velvet, with flaring skirt, finger-tip veil, and orange blossoms fastening her halo head-dress. Her flowers were gardenias and bouvardia. She was attended only by her sister, Mrs. Parks Clemmons of San Diego, herself a recent bride. The latter wore a demure gown of Wallis blue tulle, made in quaint style with square neck and short sleeves. She carried a Talsman rose.

Dr. Charles F. Seitter, pastor of the First Methodist church of Garden Grove, performed the ceremony, at which Herman Schacht of Anaheim was best man. The bride entered the chapel on the arm of her father, but was not given by him in marriage.

Especially lovely music was provided in vocal solos sung by the groom's sister, Mrs. Jim Peterson of Santa Ana, and by his sister-in-law, Mrs. Claude Smith of Buena Park.

Supervisor and Mrs. Mitchell received 150 guests at a reception held after the ceremony at their Garden Grove home, with the latter clad in a handsome gown of coronation blue with gardenia corsage. Assisting in serving were Mrs. C. L. Mitchell, and Mrs. J. W. Mitchell.

The attractive bride, graduated from Garden Grove high school, and Santa Ana junior college where she was affiliated with the Meow club, is a member of the Garden Grove Junior Woman's Civic club. The groom, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. B. Smith of Anaheim, attended Anaheim high school, Riverside junior college, U. C. L. A. and Whitman college at Walla Walla. He is now employed in the local office of the Southern California Edison Co. and he and his bride will make their home here after a short honeymoon trip.

TID-BITS

By DR. MARY E. WRIGHT
Christmas feeling is in the air even before Thanksgiving is over. Girls, wouldn't it be grand to have Yuletide decorations in your own yard? Dr. Elizabeth Tock and her neighbor, Mrs. G. J. Mosbaugh, both have lovely trees of California holly (really mountain laurel) right in their side yards, and the trees are covered with glorious red berries.

Then look at the wonderful hedge of poinsettias covering the south wall of the courthouse. They should be an object of civic pride, an annual Christmas decoration.

At a recent function, Mrs. Davis Howell was present, gowned in black with quite the most exquisite fur wrap I ever saw. Two silver fox skins were joined into a sort of bolero jacket, with the heavier bodies forming the back of the garment.

Mrs. H. P. Lykne was lunching with her daughter Emily, Mrs. Fred Merker, and as I met her I thought, "Sweet, sensible mother of fine sons and daughters," for she is blessed with the almost all near her and her husband in Santa Ana. There are Andrew, Carl, Edward, Christine Facco, Emily Merker, Nora Deininger, and Lillian Edgar.

When Allen went home and told her husband, Judge James L. Allen, that she had been hit by a car when walking, she took all the blame. He said, "I know you as a good driver, but you must be a poor pedestrian."

The mistake Alyse made has cured me of talking. The same day the news of the minor accident was reported, Judge Allen's suggestion of a red stripe on the cars of careless drivers was also published. Now, the judge should find some scarlet badge for the sisterhood of jay-walkers.

John Trickey, 725 West Walnut street, Orange, has donated three numbers of "The Delineator" of 1895 to the city library. In looking through them I found special articles on ornament in the lingerie styles. The gowns with yard-wide skirts, and huge balloon sleeves reminded me of San Francisco days when women had to go through the doors of street cars sideways.

Some draperies and interior decorations and furniture with it again. Margaret Tedford, who makes and dresses period dolls, will find joy in these old magazines.

BRADYS ARE DINNER HOSTS

Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Brady entertained a number of relatives at a lovely Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. Guests included Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thackery and daughter Joan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robb, Mr. and Mrs. Gene L. Robb and baby daughter Sherrell of Orange, and Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Brady and daughters, Vera Jean and Maryland.

Mrs. W. A. Brady of Beloit, Kan., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Thackery, was an honored guest. Virginia Taylor of San Diego accompanied Mr. and Mrs. Walter Robb to the Brady home at Costa Mesa.

Although Mrs. A. N. Zerman is not a football fan herself she never fails her granddaughter Helen Winter and the latter's high school friends, but takes her big car filled to every game. Archalee, Helen's sister, plays in the band, so is also always present.

I wonder if the girls realize how fine it is to have a grandmother who is still attractive and young enough to want to give them and share in the good times that youth deserves.

I saw some really truly green chrysanthemums, which were lovely. Could think of table cool and restful looking with those flowers in a white bowl on a small drape of green satin ribbon, with

A covered dish dinner preceded the busy evening, with Esther Belle Christian in charge. On her committee were Adelaide Johnson, Chelena McBurney, Jo Butler, Mrs. Bibbs, Martha Horseman, Carolyn Rogers, and Dorothea Eddy.

COUPLE WED AT ORANGE CHURCH

A quiet wedding, witnessed by relatives and close friends, was that of Miss Esther Meyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis J. Meyer, and Miss Marie Fitch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Greiser, all of Orange, at St. John's Lutheran church, Wednesday evening.

The bride wore an afternoon ensemble of green crepe, with corsage of gardenias and bouvardia. She was attended by Miss Clara Meyer, her sister.

Arnold Prevent was best man, and Miss Marie Fitch was organist. The Rev. Kenneth Ahl read the marriage rites, and the bride was given away by her father.

Afterward the 26 wedding guests were entertained at a reception at the Walker Memorial hall. The new Mrs. Greiser is a graduate of Orange High school, while the bridegroom graduated from the same school and attended Concordia college for two years. After a wedding trip, they will be at home on Balboa island.

GIRLS ARE HOSTESSES TO MOTHERS

The G. G. G. class of the First Methodist church sponsored a "mothers and daughters" dinner party this week at the church. Gay autumn flowers and fruits made attractive tables for the affair, and later games were played.

Present were Mrs. M. C. McArthur, Miss Inez Hickman, Mrs. Roy Cowdy, Miss Irene Cowdy, Mrs. Ernest Winbiger, Miss Elizabeth Winbiger, Miss Gladys Chapman, Mrs. E. G. Motley, Miss Helen Motley, Mrs. R. E. Waters, Miss Virginia Waters, Mrs. A. Rolf, Miss Juanita Rolf, Mrs. M. B. Bailey, Miss Mary Jane Bailey, Mrs. A. McKee and Miss Mary Naomi McKee.

KINGREYS ARE DINNER HOSTS

Among the many happy family reunions over the holiday was a dinner party at which Mr. and Mrs. T. P. Kingrey entertained in their comfortable home.

Their guests included Mr. and Mrs. M. D. Leh and Barbara and Marcus of Pasadena, Mrs. Emma Axton of Santa Ana, Mrs. Harry Gross of Dodge City, Kans., and Doral and Kenneth Kingrey of the home.

White candles. At the table wouldn't this salad course look lovely, too?

Cream cheese and mayonnaise beaten in lime jelly, with crushed pineapple added, and placed on lettuce, the whole the color of the center decoration. The ladies of the Second Travel section of Ebell served a like salad at their luncheon recently, the concoction made by Mrs. J. J. Harrison.

Earning a Living at Home Is Problem Facing This Santa Ana Widow

The problem of suitable work by which middle aged people may support themselves and be independent of their children has long been a serious one. But even more today is this question appearing, today in a letter from a widow who finds she must have some sort of work to do at home to provide a living for herself, her daughter, and her two granddaughters. Here is the letter:

MARY HAMPTON'S Column

I am a great lover of "spunk." And so when the day's mail gave me this special letter which I am reading, a thrill of admiration ran up and down my backbone. It was a letter about fashion—true, only what I saw was between the lines and that magnificent courage which surmounts its woes and illnesses with a will to live and come out on top. And because I know there are others, too, in wheel chairs and sanatoria, I thought perhaps this woman's ways might be a spark of inspiration to them as well. She has written a most delightful letter—full of colorful yarn swatches—and descriptions—and plans. But it begins this way—

"With your willingness to help and your excellent authority on color, there are so many things you can help me with. After five months in a wheel chair—lots of yarn and some ambition—I find myself completely recovered with some perfectly well knit dresses!"

It is accessories this interesting woman has written to me about—and she so enthusiastically mentions that "I had planned black or brown but with all these elegant new shades I am bewildered and turn to you!"

And what I thought, as I read this letter, is that there will be better tonic in "these elegant new colors," and more reward for months of waiting, than in almost anything else a woman can grasp at!

Do you know that the mere handling of colors is a tonic? If a woman is convalescing and enjoys knitting, the mere playing with color, the mere handling of exciting and appealing to her individually, does something which we practical mortals in a money-pursuing age under value too much. Sometimes we pass by these subtle little realities for the things we are trained to value. Only between you and me, remember this—a colorful quilt upon a bed—a frilly bed-jacket—love—maybe a colored chiffon hankie which we can flick across the bedcovers, can give a little boost and a thrill which the most expensive bottle of medicine is sometimes powerless to give!

I recall one of the sweetest letters I have ever received—from a woman who was crippled and spent her life in a wheel chair. And with spirit she had made up her mind to dress charmingly—and spread an interesting cover over her knees—and capture beauty and imagination for her unusual world too. And it can be done. If one must wear coverlets over injured knees—they can be pretty coverlets to look at, and attractive to those who come to visit. They can be changed like costumes, to meet the occasion. And think of the fun of making such plans—and making such covers—and bringing to the bare fact of an exterior world that touch of magic which only the imagination can bring—like warming sparks!

JUNIOR SECTION CHANGES NAME

Deciding to change their section's name to the "Home and Garden" group of Junior Ebell, members the former Garden section met Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Burt Zaiser. Henceforth the group will discuss interior decorations as well as garden planning.

Two interesting talks featured yesterday's session, with Mrs. Zaiser discussing kitchen gardenettes, and Mrs. Crawford Nalle discussing herbs.

Miss Jean Ferrey and Mrs. Joseph Winder will be co-hostesses in January at the home of the former, who has been named publicity chairman for the section.

Members include the Mesdames Q. L. Hardy, Thoburn White, Albert Harvey, Joseph Winder, Calvin Flint, Robert Guild, Raymond Terry, and Miss Ferrey.

Father Reads Rites For Couple

Quiet beauty combined with the festive spirits pervading the air during holiday time characterized the simple home wedding of Miss Norma Wilson and Howard Fitzgerald Wednesday afternoon at the twilight hour.

Nuptials were read by the Rev. J. H. Fitzgerald, father of the groom, as the couple stood on a white rug between great baskets of shaggy white chrysanthemums, with palms and ferns in the background.

Miss Wilson wore a striking afternoon frock of peacock blue with gold accessories contrasting with her cluster of Talsman roses. She was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. J. Russell Wilson, wearing a smart rust ensemble with gardenia corsage.

Little Bobbie Jo Wilson was ring bearer for her aunt, dressed in a quaint frock with a band of baby rust-hued chrysanthemums in her blonde hair. Her father, J. Russell Wilson, was best man.

Mr. and Mrs. B. O. Wilson, parents of the bride, entertained at a wedding reception for the 30 guests witnessing the ceremony, with her assisted by Mrs. J. H. Fitzgerald of Huntington Park, mother of the groom. Mrs. Wilson wore a rust crepe afternoon frock and Mrs. Fitzgerald was in navy blue, both wearing gardenias.

After their honeymoon in San Francisco, Mr. and Mrs. Fitzgerald will make their home at 1107 Bush street. The former attended U. C. L. A. where he was affiliated with Sigma Nu fraternity. The bride attended local schools.

THREE-YEAR-OLD FETED ON ANNIVERSARY

Appointments carried out entirely in pale yellow and a delicate green shade made a charming background for a birthday party given recently by Mrs. J. E. Sims in her home, 125 South Van Ness street, to compliment her daughter, Miss Shirley Joan Sims, on her third anniversary.

The youngsters played gay little games in the yard before they went to the dinner room for refreshments. There they found a table covered with a canopy of streamers, and lighted with candles. A bouquet of green and yellow chrysanthemums centered the table, and a huge cake iced with green and topped with yellow tapers was served with icy cream.

The little honor guest was privileged to open her gifts at that time, and favors were given to the guests as horns.

Mrs. C. E. Bowman, Shirley's grandmother, assisted in the hostessing duties. Those present were Shirley, Joan Fowler, Helen Wilson, Jolene Loughton, Priella Lou True, Elaine True, Rosamont Clark, Barbara Mackey of Laguna Beach, John Benton Adams, Donny Wilson, Charles Ray, Dannie Spencer, Tommy and Richard Holmes, Vonnice Bronson, Bobbie Elsner, Neil Cochrane.

BRIDGE CLUB HAS SESSION

Miss Bee Cleveland was hostess to members of her Seven o'Clock Bridge club Tuesday entertaining them in the home of Mrs. Fred Parker, 924 Hickory street, for an enjoyable social and business session.

The hostess carried out a Thanksgiving motif with her bouquets of baby chrysanthemums in glowing autumn shades, and small favors. Prizes were won by Miss Beverly Weindorf with high score and by Miss Marjorie Livesey with low.

Those who enjoyed the evening were Mrs. Neil Parker, Mrs. Jack Livesey, Miss Winifred Normandy, Miss Beverly Weindorf, Miss Marjorie Livesey, Miss Nadene Ogden, Miss Ginger Keeler, and Miss Cleveland.

PIEIRIANS JUDGE ENTRIES FOR CONTEST

Meeting in the morning to judge entries in the round table contest for Facets magazine, members of the Pieirian club gathered Tuesday in the home of Mrs. Margaret Church, 606 South Main street.

During the morning business period, Mrs. Mary Perdue and Mrs. Thomas P. McKee were welcomed as new members of the organization. Mrs. George Bond reported acceptance of her poem, "A Prayer for a Day" by the Epworth Herald.

Mrs. Perdue was appointed publicity chairman, and Mrs. Bond was appointed leader of study and discussion. Plans for the next meeting to be in the form of a Christmas party were made. It will be at 1:30 p. m. on Thursday, Dec. 23, at the home of Mrs. Hugh Gerrard.

A delicious luncheon was served by the hostess to the group, and each of the members read original selections under the leadership of Mrs. Margaret Church. The subject was a Bible verse on Thanksgiving.

MRS. ARNOLD HOSTESS TO STUDY SECTION

Mrs. P. R. Arnold was hostess to members of the Santa Ana Woman's club Tuesday afternoon, entertaining them at a noon pot-luck luncheon, followed by a study and business session, which she conducted as leader.

Current topics provided the subject for conversation during the afternoon, with the present crisis in the Orient coming in for much attention. Each member read a short news item in answer to the roll call.

Members discussed Emily Post's latest book on etiquette, and pointed out the gradually changing manners as they read. A chapter from David Seabury's book, "Growing into Life," was read also.

Mrs. Arnold had decorated her home with artistic arrangements of cactaceae. Those present for the afternoon were Mrs. Mary Fairbanks, Mrs. W. C. Clark, Mrs. E. G. Maier, Mrs. C. H. Stanley, Mrs. C. F. Crose, Mrs. R. A. McMahon, Mrs. P. R. Arnold, Mrs. Bessie E. Wells, and Mrs. George de Roulhac.

Lombard and MacMurray on 'Hollywood Hotel'

By TOM E. DANSON
Carole Lombard and Fred MacMurray, one of the screen's most popular teams, will return as the guests of "Hollywood Hotel" to preview scenes from their latest vehicle, "True Confession," on tonight's broadcast from KNX, 6:00 to 7:00 p. m.

During their preview of an earlier picture, "Hands Across the Table," Fred learned that he had been promoted to stardom and it was Miss Lombard who insisted on breaking the news to him during their guest appearance on the "Hotel." MacMurray has been one of "Hollywood Hotel's" former master-of-ceremonies. Others to be heard include Jerry Cooper, Anne Jamison, Ken Niles, Raymond Faig's orchestra and Ken Murray with "Oswald."

★ Tin Pan Alley wants to know if you have ever heard of the name Eddie Cherkose? Perhaps you have... perhaps you haven't... but in any event, you are no doubt familiar with some of his many accomplishments. Eddie Cherkose wrote the lyrics and gags for the Ritz Brothers in "One in a Million," and the sketches in the film "On the Avenue," composed the lyrics for such musical sensations as "Peckin'" and "King of the Road." And now in providing interesting entertainment for the Listen, Ladies! audience, George Irwin will bring Cherkose to the microphone during various different programs, heard each week day from KEHE, 2 to 2:30 p. m., so Listen, Ladies!

★ Alice Faye, the film and leading songstress, and Hal Kemp's orchestra will present another melodic interlude over the Columbia network, tonight, 8:30 to 9. Their program is entitled "Music From Hollywood." Miss Faye will sing several of the songs which she has made famous in the movies, and the Kemp outfit will present recent hits interspersed with revivals of yesterday's favorites. The program also will feature the solos of vocalists Skinny Ennis, Bob Allen and Saxie Dowell.

★ It comes to us by means of the good old "wax" panache more commonly known as recordings, but Ted Steele's "Swing Club," recent KMPC innovation, is now swinging into session as a regular broadcast every Friday night. Maestro Steele, young New York band leader and swing music specialist, is the writer and commentator on this program. Swing fans may tune in "Swing Club" on Friday nights from 11:30 to 12.

★ The story to be dramatized on the Radio Book Club program, heard from KEHE each Friday evening at 6:30, will this week tell of the adventures of Pecos Bill... the greatest cowboy of all time. Pecos Bill, the character created by Bill, is credited with having invented the branding system of identifying livestock, and has had his now famous name mentioned in countless "tall tales" told of the western ranges. The story of Pecos Bill is written by James Bowman and will be interpreted in dramatic form by a skilled group of actors.

SIGHTS and SOUNDS—By Robin Coons

HOLLYWOOD. — The moviegoers who say they went to get away from it all... meaning pursuing fancies—could take a lesson from Clark Gable, who really gets. Gable left here on vacation in a station wagon and old clothes. He took rifles but no razor. Passing through Salt Lake City he got a shave and was recognized. After that he dropped out of sight.

Talbot Jennings, Metro writer, has a brother, Charlie in Montana. Charlie used to be a peace officer but now operates a dude ranch. He knows hide-outs in the mountains. He tipped Gable a few. The star returned seven weeks later, tanned, 12 pounds lighter, the Hollywood atmosphere off of his lungs. He had a seven-week beard. Charlie Jennings tried to get a picture, but Gable always said he'd be on movie horses—were unromantic. There isn't any picture. Too bad.

Gable has hide-outs in Southern California, too. He spent two weeks on a non-advertising ranch in the hills above Santa Barbara. Another week went by at a little duck club near there which has only five members—Gable, E. J. Mannix, Jack Conway, Sam Woods and Spencer Tracy. He was gone for 12 weeks—and his own studio didn't know where he was any of the time! Several years ago one of those mystery comedies that had been a stage hit was acquired for the movies. It has just been filmed.

The other day the movie producer ran into the fellow who produced it originally on the stage. "That's great stuff for the first two acts," said the movie man, "but the third act takes a terrible drop."

The stage producer got to thinking.

"Says," he said, "what script did you use? You know the third act was awful until we rewrote it—then it clicked."

The movie man groaned. But it was too late. The picture had been finished—from the original script. Proving that Hollywood is still Hollywood.

More about Gay Seabrook... After a lifetime on the stage, Gay Seabrook, radio artist admits that she misses the responsiveness of the theater audience when she is speaking into the microphone.

"It doesn't mean that I'm not fond of radio, but I can understand when someone who has been on the stage says that it's just different somehow," Miss Seabrook asserted.

The diminutive actress who started her career in Seattle by reciting "I'm My Mamma's Darling" at the age of three years, is being presented over the Don Lee network, on KVOE, 8:15 to 8:30 a. m. daily in "This Side of Twenty," with Emerson Treacy.

Miss Seabrook stepped into radio from the role of the baby voice in the late Will Rogers motion picture, "The Country Gentleman." Previously she had been featured on the screen in a series of Hal Roach productions with "Spanky" MacFarland.

David Broekman will score another musical scoop when he presents a new Raymond Scott composition in its initial airing on "Presenting David Broekman," which will come to KVOE Don Lee Mutual listeners tonight at 7:00 o'clock.

Broekman will baton Scott's latest work, "Reckless Night Aboard an Ocean Liner," prepared by the composer for current production at Twentieth Century Fox Films. Additional musical numbers will include a medley of nursery rhymes, interpreted in characteristic Broekman style.

A very delightful program will be heard from KVOE featuring the Santa Ana J. C. string trio tonight at 8:15 o'clock. The string trio is composed of Kenneth Alkin, violin; Jack Lighthouse, cello, and Edna Walker at the piano. The program is as follows: Andante Cantabile...Tschalkowsky The Rosary...Nevin Told at Twilight...Hueter Melody in F...Rubenstein

WHITE MOTIF BACKGROUND FOR BRIDGE PLAY

A striking white motif was used by Mrs. Don Mozley Tuesday afternoon when she entertained members of her bridge club in her home, 122 West Eighteenth street, for a dessert course and evening play.

Centering the large table was a white bowl of white narcissus, and lovely candelabra. Baskets of white chrysanthemums, together with some blooms in delicate pink, completed the floral arrangements.

Mrs. Jesse Elliott won a towel set for first prize, and Mrs. Delbert Liggett a card table cover for second. Others present were Mrs. Mary Johnson, Mrs. Olin Turner, Mrs. Henry Wagner, Mrs. Herbert Allemen, and Mrs. Mozley.

KENNETH PRICES HONORED AT INFORMAL PARTY

A surprise holiday visit by Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Price (Marcia Huber) of Fresno to their parents in Santa Ana, the Ross Hubers and the C. E. Prices, was occasion for many happy reunions in the younger set over Thanksgiving.

On Wednesday evening Dr. and Mrs. Clarence Ranney and Mr. and Mrs. Crawford Nalle had an informal affair in their honor at the Ranney home on Heliopole drive. Among those gathering to enjoy an evening of games that was climaxed with a wiener roast were Dr. and Mrs. Stanley Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Stump, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Q. L. Hardy, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Guild, the Prices, the Ranneys, and the Nalles.

Mr. and Mrs. John Mills entertained Mr. Mills' father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Mills, at a delightful Thanksgiving dinner. The occasion was also the observance of Mr. Mills' mother's birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul M. McClelland were guests yesterday at the home of Mrs. D. P. Crawford in Orange.

DEBUTANTE SEASON IS OPENED

WASHINGTON. (AP)— Lucky young men on the social stag lists stuck away their bilfolds this week. Fathers of capital debutantes got out their checkbooks.

The "coming-out party" season was on.

Thanksgiving holidays brought back the college crowd to give or attend debutante teas, dances or balls which will dot the social calendar daily until Jan. 1.

Social secretaries estimated the cost of the average tea dance or ball given to introduce a girl here at from $1000 to $1300. A few cost more, but some mothers say a tea for 350 to 500 persons can be given at home with a caterer's help for as little as $350.

Fathers pay the bills, and the boys who know the girls have free entertainment—at least until the big subscription dances take place at Christmas time.

Thirty-six debut announcements to date indicated a slight reduction in the 1937 crop. Usually there are from 40 to 60.

The only diplomatic daughter to make her bow is Miss Anne Mahoney, whose father is secretary of the Canadian legation.

The only congressional debutante expected is Miss Fanchon Aldrich, niece of Rep. and Mrs. Jesse P. Wolcott of Port Huron, Mich.

Mrs. William Laird Dunlop, who has brought out from 250 to 300 debutantes in 11 years as social secretary of a Washington hotel, expressed regret today that cliques are "beginning to develop" in the capital.

"That is unfortunate," she said. "I think the custom of inviting all debutantes to all parties which arose from the floating nature of the capital's population is splendid."

Children to Be 'Jury' for School Mural

WASHINGTON. (AP)—A "jury" of five school children will decide whether a Mother Goose mural criticized as grotesque shall remain at Glenn Dale children's sanitarium.

Dr. George C. Ruhland, health officer, said the picture was harmful for young and imaginative patients. Other adults called it entertaining.

District Commissioner George E. Allen considered consulting art critics, then decided to leave it up to the children themselves.

Baby Born After Mother Succumbs

CHARLOTTE, N. C. (AP)—A tiny mite of life, saved by a Caesarian operation a few minutes after the death of the mother, Mrs. Robert Helms, snuggled today in a hospital incubator.

A baby specialist, Dr. Jasper Hunt, said the three-pound, 12-ounce girl, born two months prematurely, had a "fair chance" to live.

The operation was performed Tuesday night by Dr. W. B. Bradford and Dr. R. M. Gallant at Mercy hospital.

Dr. Gallant said the operation took place "three to five minutes" after the 19-year-old mother died.

Physicians said it was extremely rare that a child born under such circumstances lives more than a few minutes. A child born under similar conditions in Philadelphia general hospital Aug. 1 lived 46 hours and the case created wide notice.

Beating Kills Magazine Editor

NEW YORK. (AP)—Claude H. Kendall, associate editor of the publishing firm of James T. White & Co., was found beaten to death yesterday in the Hotel Madison, East 27th street.

A negro maid, Mary Hayes, who entered Kendall's eighth floor with a passkey, found the editor's body. A cursory police examination indicated he had been hit many times with a heavy object.

Police learned he had attended a Thanksgiving eve wine party. He was about 45 years old.

Culprit Raises Larceny to 'Heavy Industry' Class

CHICAGO. (AP)—The warden at the state penitentiary had something to consider today in admitting Edward Rockwood for a one to 10-year term.

Rockwood was sentenced on a charge of larceny yesterday after a criminal court prosecutor listed some of the things he was charged with stealing, to wit:

A 15-ton derrick with 90 foot beam; a traveling crane, complete with elevated trackage; two electric hoists; three stone planers; a three-car garage; a brick mill, 75 by 40 feet; a woodcutting shed and office building, 100 by 30 feet.

It was while Rockwood's workmen (he was the owner of a wrecking firm) were tackling an enormous stone cutting plant after removing the heavy machinery that the police intervened by request of the astonished owner.

These depredations to substantial structures gave Warden Joseph Ragen cause to cast questioning glances at the penitentiary walls and wonder whether Rockwood concerned in the aphorism, "stone walls do not a prison make, nor iron bars a cage."

CARNEGIE GIFTS WILL CONTINUE

NEW YORK. (P)—The late Andrew Carnegie, who was born 102 years ago, is continuing 18 years after his death in the self-appointed role of "agent of his poorer brethren."

The great trusts established by the Scotland-born American steel king are estimated to have spent $344,000,000 in charitable enterprises in the past quarter century.

The statement of the Carnegie corporation, one of the trusts set up with bequests of $270,000,000 before Carnegie's death, indicated today how well the once poverty stricken youth accomplished what he called the "duty" of a man of wealth.

This duty, he said, was "to consider all surplus revenues which come to him simply as trust funds, which he is called upon to administer, the man of wealth thus becoming the mere trustee and agent for his poorer brethren."

The corporation, established in 1911 with an endowment of $135,000,000 had expended up to last Oct. 1 an income of about $172,000,000 for the advancement and diffusion of knowledge among English speaking peoples.

Based on this proportion, it is estimated a total of $344,000,000 has been spent by all the trusts with the $270,000 principal still intact.

The funds include that to reward heroes in peace times, the endowment for international peace, the foundation for advancement of teaching, the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh and the Carnegie Institution of Washington. Other monuments of his generosity are 2505 libraries, the temple of peace at the Hague, the Pan-American

Libel Action Holds Ship Which Stranded Youths

PORTLAND, Ore. (P)—The Norwegian motorship Maloja was held in port today under a $38,000 action filed by three youths' guardian, George Estes, lawyer, on grounds that the captain "kicked the trio in distant Yokohama."

Estes said the board would have to remain here "until a bond satisfactory to us is posted." A hearing in federal court remains to be set.

The complaint alleged that Kenneth Long, 17, Alfred Sadler, 18, and Stanley Walker, 18, all of Portland, sailed on the Maloja last May for the orient, intending to return for the fall term of school. Reaching Yokohama, the captain told the students he had to go to Singapore.

Upon the return to Japan, the captain said he had to sail to Australia and might be gone a year, the complaint alleged. When the youths protested, they claimed he called them "American rats" and abandoned them.

EYSTON MAY ENTER MOVIES

SALT LAKE CITY. (P)—The jolly old cinema czars are after the services of Captain George E. T. Eyston of England today, seeking to put the speedster in celluloid.

The new king of the world's high speed drivers—a slightly stoop-shouldered, going-grey, 40-year-old Englishman with an accent as thick as London fog—admitted he "had been approached" by film moguls.

"I don't know exactly what sort of thing I'd be cast in, said Eyston, who set a world land speed record of 311.42 M.P.H. for the running mile on the Bonneville, Utah, salt flats last Friday. "It would have to be a sporting cinema—I'm no Clark Gable or Robert Taylor."

Captain Eyston will fly to Los Angeles tomorrow.

Should Eyston appear in films, theater goers would not have an opportunity to see his mammoth racing car "Thunderbolt."

FINAL RITES FOR PREMIER

LONDON. (P)—Funeral services for James Ramsay MacDonald, the son of a poor Scottish farmer who forged the British labor movement and lived to count the late King George V among his friends, were held today in the somber, historic dignity of Westminster Abbey.

The Duke of Gloucester, representing his brother, King George VI, headed the host of notables who mourned for the former British prime minister. MacDonald died Nov. 9 on his way to South America for a rest. He was 71 years old.

Among the pallbearers were MacDonald's closest associate in the government he once headed and his successor, Earl Baldwin; Neville Chamberlain, the present prime minister, and Sir John Simon, chancellor of the exchequer.

House of Commons Labor Leader R. Attlee and Sir Walter Citrine, general secretary of the trades union congress, who contended to the last that MacDonald was a "traitor" to the labor movement, testified to the passing of a national figure by joining the pallbearers.

'NUISANCE' TAXES MAY BE CUT

WASHINGTON. (P)—The ordinary public, as well as business corporations, may get a little tax relief at the 1938 session of congress, informed officials said today.

The treasury, they said, may consent to removal of "nuisance" taxes on movie tickets, tooth paste, chewing gum, perfumes, cosmetics, toilet soaps, furs, sporting goods and matches.

These levies were imposed a few years ago to offset increasing depression expenditures, but some produce little more than the cost of collection.

Other "nuisance" taxes, which bring in substantial revenues, are levied on gasoline, automobiles and accessories, radios and refrigerators. They probably will stay on the books.

Gulf Storm Danger Drops

APALACHICOLA, Fla. (P)—A disturbance moving eastward in the Gulf of Mexico was reported by weather men to have spread out and degenerated into rain squalls today.

It carries minor winds which offer no threat to the northwest Florida coast, it was said. The disturbance has lost any definite center and will bring only wet weather to a wide area.

MacDonald's body will be cremated and his dust taken tomorrow to Scotland for burial at his beloved birthplace, Lossiemouth.

CHAPTER ONE

The slightest pucker of a frown gathered on Nancy Roland's forehead—a mere tracing of fine lines and a look of surprise came into her eyes. It was a strange question, but the man who had asked it looked friendly enough.

"Where was I Thursday night, July 1, at 9:30?" she repeated. The frown rubbed out of her forehead, leaving it smooth, the surprise disappeared from her eyes and was replaced by a hint of amusement.

"Yes, Miss Roland," he returned gravely, and she thought she had never seen so big a man. His body so big, big for his blue serge uniform, big for the swivel chair he was sitting in, big even for his desk which was good sized and sturdily built, big for the room which was his office.

"Last Thursday night I was with my cousin. I can't tell you just where we were at 9:30, because we were driving. We started at about 8:30—after the library closed, closer perhaps to 8:35, and we got home around 10:30," she replied, helpfully, and then as an after thought, "The only cousin I have is Alan Jory."

The big man nodded and fumbled with a pencil that looked like a match stick in his pudgy hands.

TALKED TO HIM

"I know Mr. Jory. I've already talked to him."

So Alan had been questioned, too, about what he had done Thursday night! The surprise returned to Nancy's eyes.

Did they think—these men in this room—that Alan might have shot Uncle Dodge? Or were they simply eliminating—as a matter of routine?

Of course. That was it. First immediate members of the family, then others who would be concerned. After all Dodge Roland was dead, and he had been for several days, and the police had to find out who had murdered him.

That was their job, and if it was part of that job to eliminate her and Alan as suspects, well, that was all right.

She smiled across at the big man and was disturbed when he didn't smile back. His face seemed suddenly grim to her and forbidding. She sensed a strain in the room.

Her own pulse quickened a bit as she saw that the officer on the man's right was scribbling in a notebook. He was making a record of what she said.

AWARE OF MEN

For the first time since she had entered the room, Nancy was acutely aware of the men in the room. There were three of them beside Captain Wyman, the big man who had met her in the ante-room and ushered her in, even politely found a chair for her.

The officer who was writing in his long white notebook and who was resting his pencil, now, his lips moved slightly as he re-read his notes; another officer at her right and Captain Wyman's left.

He was sitting very still, his hands folded over his stomach, thin hands in contrast to Wyman's and a thin stomach, too, and a thin long face that was discouraging to look at.

Another man in the room, too, a man sitting slightly behind Wyman, not in uniform as the others were, but wearing a light gray suit carefully pressed, a white oxford cloth shirt and a dark blue tie.

Between his knees was a malacca cane on which his hands rested heavily. Back of Wyman's dark thick head of hair, his hair seemed white. Nancy didn't know whether it was blond or gray. If it was gray, it must be premature as his face was youthful.

She didn't know his name, nor the name of the two other officers. The only man she knew by name was Captain Wyman. There had been no introductions when she entered his office.

HELP US

"Perhaps you'll be able to help us, Miss Roland," a masculine voice which had identified itself as belonging to Sergeant Smith had explained over the telephone only an hour ago. Nancy thought the voice kindly, friendly, the explanation sufficient.

She was willing to help—more than willing.

Now she wondered if this mysterious Sergeant Smith's voice had been so kindly, so friendly as she had imagined, whether her reception in Captain Wyman's outer office had been as cordial as she had thought, whether even Captain Wyman's handshake was sincere.

Whether, indeed she had ever shaken that big hand, that big face were narrowed so they were almost slits. The lips, large and full, tightened. Nancy could see them tighten as if a string were drawing them together.

She didn't miss the quick glance, either, that Wyman exchanged with his sergeant-stenographer, when the officer looked up from his notes.

UNCOMFORTABLE

She felt decidedly uncomfortable, as if the warm air had grown very chilly. Nancy knew there was no chill. She knew the morning was warm and lovely and that by noon it would be warmer still and she would be wishing she hadn't worn a black dress, that she had chosen a cooler sports dress with short sleeves.

And yet you couldn't come down to a police station in a sports dress eighteen hours after your uncle had been found dead in his laboratory. You had to be dignified.

People would expect you to wear black, even if there never had been any special love between you and your uncle, and everybody knew it who knew you.

Nancy folded her hands, too, not across her stomach but across the bag which lay in her lap. She was getting nervous.

QUIET ROOM

The room was very quiet for a moment or so, then the man in gray shifted his cane with a grating sound. Nancy was glad he did it. It relieved the tension, the mere scraping of the brass ferrule of the cane on the ugly linoleum covered floor.

You say you were out with your cousin Thursday evening, July 1?" Wyman asked, slowly.

"You're sure it wasn't Wednesday evening, June 30, that you were with Mr. Jory?"

"I'm sure I was with my cousin on Thursday evening—" The officer at the right of Wyman was writing again. His fingers flew over the white lined page.

Nancy continued: "Wednesday evening, June 30, I was at home. I went right home when the library closed—I was handling it alone last week, you see. My partner was away on a vacation with her family."

Wyman interrupted her. "I know, Miss Roland. I've already found out that Miss Teale was on a holiday starting Sunday of last week and ending Saturday night."

STARTLED LOOK

Nancy looked startled, and she sat up a little stiffer in the chair which was beginning to be uncomfortable even if Wyman, when he led her to it, had recommended it strongly.

The seat was hard and at the rounds at the back hit her spine annoyingly.

"My cousin will, of course, verify the fact that I was with him Thursday evening," Captain Wyman. And if it's an alibi you want, I have it and so has he. Naturally, I had nothing to do with the death—of my uncle."

She tried to make these last words convincing and dignified, but her voice shook as she spoke and she thought she had failed.

Wyman went on as if he hadn't heard what she said. His voice was flat, uninteresting, and a trifle high pitched.

TWO SERVANTS

"Thursday morning, July 1, Miss Roland, the two servants employed by your uncle, Dodge Roland, left the house at eight o'clock to drive to Oregon where your uncle usually spent a month each summer."

The servants were driving a day ahead to get the lodge in order. Right?"

"Right," Nancy murmured, although she was puzzled.

She knew all that. She had heard it first from John Talcott, her uncle's lawyer, and then she had read it in the newspapers.

She couldn't understand why Captain Wyman was repeating it.

"That was Thursday, July 1, as I said, Dodge Roland, fending for himself on meals Thursday night, walked to a cafe, the Grand, six blocks from his home, for dinner."

"He often ate there when his servants had their day off and he was known there. He came in at seven, left at about 15 minutes to eight. He was seen by the private watchman who patrols the neighborhood at eight sharp as he entered his house."

In fact he spoke to the watchman, who knew him. At nine o'clock when the watchman came around again there were lights on the third floor of the house which is your uncle's laboratory."

BACKFIRE OF CAR

"The watchman especially noticed them. At 9:30, the immediate neighbors of your uncle thought they heard the backfire of a car. At 10 o'clock the watchman came around again—he gets to the Roland house exactly on the hour every night—and noted that the lights in the third floor laboratory were out. The entire house was in darkness."

Nancy took her eyes from Wyman and looked at the sergeant-stenographer. He was busy with his strange signs on his notebook. The other officer was still sitting against his stomach. He seemed to be scarcely breathing.

The man in the gray suit was watching the curved head of his cane and his fingers on top of it. His face, the girl thought, was vaguely familiar.

She moved restlessly in her chair, seeking a more comfortable posture. Wyman's voice went on, monotonous, a little higher than before.

SERVANTS ARRIVE

"The night of July 2 Dodge Roland's servants, the Cramers, arrived at the lodge near Medford, Ore. They thought their employer had started at about 10 o'clock the morning of July 2."

"Those were his plans when they left, to start Thursday, he going Friday, going up leisurely and slowly because he didn't like to drive fast."

"They had things ready for him by Sunday noon, but they weren't sure whether he would come. Sunday evening or Monday. So they didn't think much about it when he hadn't arrived Monday night. Monday was bad, you may remember, up the Coast, an unusually heavy fog."

"Tuesday, they began to be worried because they'd had no word from him and Tuesday evening George Cramer phoned the house in Los Angeles, and when he got no answer called John Talcott, your uncle's lawyer."

"Talcott was away for the night and returned the call Wednesday morning. He immediately went out to the house, borrowing Alan Jory's key to get in, taking Jory with him."

SHOT TO DEATH

"They found your uncle shot to death in his laboratory. They found the calendar above his desk and the one in his bedroom still reading July 1, Thursday."

"Dodge Roland was known to be meticulous about dates. He always attended to all the calendars in the house himself—the last thing before he went to bed. He always, too, attended to his laboratory himself, and when the police entered it, they found that he had not put his tables nor his desk in order."

"This was a habit of his before he went to bed. So we have settled in our minds the time of his death as Thursday, July 1, at about 9:30 o'clock—the time when Dodge Roland's neighbors at the left, the Burkes, thought they heard the backfire of a car."

There was another weighty silence, and again the man in gray moved his cane a bit noisily on the floor.

UNDERSTAND IT

"Is that the way you understand it, Miss Roland?" Wyman asked.

"That was the way Mr. Talbot explained things to me last night and what the papers said."

She was ashamed of her voice, the weakness of it and the way her lips trembled. Her fingers were shaking, too, and into her forehead came the faint suggestion of pain.

"When did you see your uncle last?"

"Some months ago," she replied, hesitatingly. "Four months ago to be exact." Wyman was going to probe into that, and it probably was going to be embarrassing.

She squared her shoulders a trifle for the blow. It came.

"You quarreled with your uncle, Miss Roland?" The high pitched voice became very smooth, almost oily.

"We—there was a quarrel—" She bit her lips to control them. "And what was it about?"

"About a man, Captain Wyman, if you wish to know, although it has nothing to do with this case. My uncle disapproved of one of my friends—and asked me to give this friend up. I refused, naturally."

"Why naturally?" Wyman shot back at her.

"Well—I may as well tell you that my uncle and I didn't get along any too well. There was no use keeping it back. If Wyman didn't know by now, and she thought it must at the slight nodding confirmation he gave, he would know it soon."

She might as well make a clean breast of it. There was nothing to be gained by pretending that there had been a great love between her uncle and herself. Besides she couldn't lie well.

"It was simply," she continued quietly, "that he didn't understand me and I didn't understand him. Everything I did seemed to irritate him."

UNDERSTOOD HIM

"Yet he could get along with Alan Jory?" Again Wyman's voice was smooth.

"My cousin, I think, understood him, or seemed to."

"You have lived with your uncle until recently?"

"Never for long periods of time. I was away at school a good deal of the time, and then at camps during vacations. When I finished college I went into business with a friend I met there, and went to live with her."

That was a year and a half ago. But I visited my uncle regularly until—" Wyman finished for her.

"Until four months ago." She nodded.

"But you still have a key to your uncle's house?"

"I believe I have. I don't think I ever returned it. I forgot to."

The man in gray leaned his cane against his knee and took a cigarette from his coat pocket. He lighted it quickly so he wouldn't miss anything in the girl's face.

In the dull, shabby room, a tense hot spark that gave vitality to the room, spread it around even to the dusty corners.

He wished as he watched her that her face wasn't such a screen to her emotions. Everything she felt, everything that was said, everything that she replied showed first in her eyes, those dark brown eyes that were getting rounder and bigger as the questioning went on.

They were too big now for her small face. From her eyes, her reactions went to the thin dark brows above them, arching them, flattening them, curving them. From her brows, the emotions came to her lips.

MAN IN GRAY

The man in gray had been making a game of the three, her eyes, her brows and her lips. Never, he thought, had he seen such a transparent face.

When she had first come in with Wyman he hadn't thought she was beautiful. He had tickled her immediately as being merely pretty—the contrast of her dark eyes and her hair that was like pure gold was striking and he liked contrasts, even if they were concerned only with blond hair and dark eyes.

Her features he had thought so-so. A nice nose, a bit on the small side, rather well shaped lips, smooth fine pale skin that blended in with her light hair but not with her dark eyes.

The kind of a girl that you would turn around and look at a second time on the street because she was reasonably pretty and had fine hair.

It was only after he had started his game that he realized she was more than pretty—that she was lovely. And that she got lovelier as the questioning went on.

As she got lovelier, he began to be sorry for her and for the eyes and the brows and the lips that were giving her away so pitifully.

He wished he hadn't started his game, and he hoped that Wyman wasn't catching on to her tell-tale features, but it was almost too much to hope.

The man in gray crossed his knees as Wyman spoke again. "Your uncle was a rich man, Miss Roland?"

"He had always been generous with you and your cousin?"

MORE QUESTIONS

"Until four months ago you received a monthly allowance of $100 dollars a month from him?"

"The allowance stopped when you had an argument with him?"

"Yes."

"Was the man you argued about Tom Miley?"

So he knew everything. "Yes."

The man in gray saw her eyes film a little first, then the brow droop at the corners, then a slight trembling of her under lip.

He flicked his ashes on Captain Wyman's floor, for he didn't want to disturb the detective by reaching over to the ash tray on the desk.

"Why didn't you get the same allowance as your cousin, Miss Roland? He got, if I remember rightly, $250 a month all through his school years and the years since then."

"My uncle had an idea that a girl didn't need as much money as a man."

"It was your money with which you started the library—not money that belonged to Miss Olive Teale?"

"I arranged the loan at the bank and signed the notes, if that's what you mean."

"A matter of a thousand dollars borrowed from the bank in your name, wasn't it?"

SHE SIGHS

Nancy sighed. Why he had to go all through this, she didn't understand. There were so many things she didn't understand. Why she was here in the first place, the hostility of the room, the sergeant-stenographer taking down every word that was said.

"You knew your uncle had made out a will leaving a trust fund of one hundred thousand dollars to you, and one for the same sum to your cousin?"

dimly. The dream scattered, the soft sweet dream and she asked him to repeat what he had said.

GLANCES UP

"Now to get back to Thursday night, July 1, Miss Roland. Where were you?"

"I was with my cousin as I told you before."

Because he glanced up at the calendar hanging on the west wall, she glanced at it, too. One page with great black letters, July 8.

That was today. July 1 had been torn off a week ago. The stub of it was somewhere at the top of the book of days which were pages.

"You were with him from a little after 8:30 until 10:30?"

"Yes, we kept the library open until 8:30, but not the gift shop."

Wyman picked up the intercommunicating phone on his desk, buzzed it sharply. "Smith," he barked, "send in Alan Jory."

The man in gray lit another cigarette. The detective, sergeant sitting with his hands folded over his stomach shifted his position slightly, and the sergeant-stenographer wiggled a little and took a fresh pencil from his pocket.

Nancy felt calmer than she had been for some time. At any rate Alan was coming in. He would tell them.

He came and Nancy smiled at him, the first smile she had been able to summon for a long time.

She had never welcomed his presence so much before, and she thought she had never liked him so well.

Wyman motioned him to a chair. "Mr. Jory," he started, before Alan had time to get seated, "were you out with Miss Roland Thursday, July 1?"

"I thought I told you Captain Wyman, when you asked me before that it was Wednesday night—June 30. I thought you understood."

"I'm asking you, Mr. Jory. Were you with Miss Roland Thursday night, July 1?"

"No, I was with her Wednesday night, June 30."

"But Alan!" Nancy cried, getting to her feet. A mistake of course! He didn't understand. He would see in a moment.

"Sit down, Miss Roland," Wyman ordered, sharply.

"But—"

VOICE CRACKS

"I said—sit down!" His voice cracked through the room like a lash.

Nancy sat down. Wyman turned back to Jory.

"You're very sure, Mr. Jory, that it was Wednesday night—not Thursday?"

Alan swallowed. A puzzled frown showed on his forehead.

"Unless I'm crazy I was with her Wednesday night—Thursday night, June 30."

"Miss Roland says it was Thursday night."

Everybody in the room, including Nancy, saw the astonishment that passed over Alan's face as he looked from the girl to Wyman. Astonishment and surprise, and some fear.

Nancy felt as though she had been struck a sharp blow on the chest that knocked the breath from her body.

ZEP EXPLOSION ... Flight Sub-Lieutenant R. A. J. Warneford, British pilot of the Royal Air Squadron, took off at Dunkirk, France, to bomb a German airship. Flying along the Belgian coast, his propeller biting through the chilly, early-morning air, Warneford sighted the grey hull of a German zeppelin returning from a night raid over England. Warneford quickly jerked his ship up over the giant bag and, near Ghent, cut loose six bombs that made direct hits on the zeppelin's sleek hull. The result was a blinding explosion that hurled Warneford's plane upward like a leaf in an autumn gale, flipping it completely over and "killing" the engine. Slightly dazed, Warneford righted his ship and brought it safely into a dead stick landing behind the enemy lines, where he started his engine and took off before being captured. The zeppelin, first ever shot down by an aviator, fell in flames on a convent, killing two women and the entire crew of the German airship. In 1930 there were 138,834 Japanese and 74,954 Chinese in the United States.

Some Optimism, Too

In spite of the heavy volume of new-depression talk you hear and read, business experts aren't 100 per cent gloomy in their current statements, by any means.

Today's mail, for instance, contains several optimistic items, some of them direct from Wall Street itself.

Roger Babson, who sometimes has been wrong in his forecasts, and on other occasions has been accurate, in a current letter writes that, "The bad break in the market has created the false impression that we are entering a major depression in security prices and business activity." He then adds his own opinion:

"Fundamental factors are still bullish. While business will drop further, the end of the first quarter of 1938 should see a resumption of the basic upward trend. The stock market has overdiscounted any business recession we can foresee."

A federal home loan bank release from Washington says: "Extensive expansion of home building in the far western states is imminent," quoting T. D. Webb, its vice chairman, upon his return from a western trip.

And the weekly letter of the Administrative and Research corporation, New York, contains this paragraph: "Reports from agricultural states in the Mid-West and West indicate steadily rising retail and mail-order sales. Farm machinery makers reported a sales increase of 20 per cent in October as compared with October, 1936, and November sales are running ahead of October levels. Mail order houses report sales improvement between 12 and 20 per cent over 1936."

Just blend these in with some of the dark brown outpourings and the picture may not look so drab.

A judge has ordered a certain card fanatic to keep out of rummy games. There's just the judge to solve the national bridge problem.

We are Invaded

The word "Americanism," which has been misapplied, misunderstood, and has become vague and hackneyed in its usage at various times since the World War, is taking on a clearer meaning and brighter hues as numerous isms so definitely opposed to it stand out in bold relief around the world.

America, which has been the melting pot of the nations, may have to decline to become the melting pot for all the poisonous and rancid isms of the world, in order to protect itself and its people.

"Americanism" may come to mean emphatic, even militant, support of the institutions and the creed that have been America's from the beginning.

It may be necessary to reject even without a hearing those who seek to amend the American creed with some doctrine generated under pressure of misery and dictatorship in a foreign land.

It may even become necessary to lay the hand of the law heavily upon bidders from within who seek at this critical time in the world's history to undermine, perhaps even overthrow, the fundamentals which have made this country great.

Propaganda is directed at the people of the United States at this time from a dozen different directions, all seeking to enlist the sympathies and divide the support of our people on various sides of the spats and brawls that trouble the world.

Propaganda is just a mild form of military invasion. The meaning of "Americanism" at this time will mean a positive resistance on the part of the individual and on the part of all public agencies to any such invasions.

Reports show that the favorite motto for this year's freshman law classes will again be: "If at first you don't succeed, try, try again."

U. S. Liberalism Digs In

Silently one by one the old-school American liberals are giving up their loud rooting for the noble Russian experiment.

A very small percentage of revolutionaries who listed themselves as liberals, and who believe in free balloting and majority rule only to the point that these do not interfere with their obsessions, still find satisfaction in what happens in Russia every morning at sunrise.

Honest liberalism, which, having the tools of free balloting and majority rule, believes in using them, is digging in for political action under the banner of liberty.

Honest liberalism never has been and never will be committed to the policy and practice of liquidating its democratic opposition by the firing-squad method.

Can planes win a war? Well, is a man ready to quit fighting when you dynamite his house and kill his children?

Miss America

So the dictators say women's place is in the home, do they? Send them back to the churn and the cradle, the spinning wheel and the stocking darning?

That may be all very well "over there," but it doesn't look at all possible in this land of the free.

We call women in the business world by such names as stenographers, secretaries, assistants and other subordinate titles. That flatters the men.

But just try to imagine what the national industrial plant would do without the headwork and handwork of the uncountable numbers of women who ride herd on the big and little details of the interlocked and finely-gear machine of business.

It couldn't be done.

FAIR Enough

Unions
Suffer From Membership

By

Westbrook
Pegler

It is the defensive practice of the professional labor unioner and the amateur unioner with political ambitions to smell up with the name of labor baiter or Girdlerite anyone who objects to the coercion and extortion which is practiced by some types of labor unions. Nevertheless, in calmer moments members of both major labor groups will admit the existence of certain abuses and of wide-open opportunities for worse abuses in the present forms of organization.

There is just no denying that the autonomy enjoyed by the A. F. of L. unions permits those who obtain control to impose prohibitive initiation fees which exclude able workmen from union membership in occupations in which a union card is absolutely compulsory. One such union now demands an initiation fee of $1000, annual dues of $60, a varying amount in special assessments and a flat 3 per cent income tax on gross earnings of the members.

THE "CLOSED" UNION

Moreover, as if all this were not sufficient to exclude new talent and preserve the job trust for those who got in on the ground floor, the union reserves the right to turn down applicants even if they should manage to borrow the $1000. It does not follow that all members of the union agree with this policy. There are some who would have preferred not to join themselves, but were scared into line by the threat that if they held out they would be placed under a boycott by union men in other organized trades working in the same business. There are some who would like to teach their craft to apprentices or helpers, but dare not do so lest they be fined or possibly expelled, and in that case excluded from employment at their own trade in which they have great skill. They just pay and behave.

This, I believe, is tops in initiation fees, but there are other unions whose initial demands are proportionate, the rate of pay considered, and the effort to maintain a job trust at the expense of younger men and other outsiders is too apparent to be denied. In fact, it is not denied but excused, though not justified, on the ground that the admission of great numbers of new members would spread the work so thin that nobody would be satisfied any more and unity would be lost. Yet this offers no solution. It merely argues that the older man or the man willing and able to scrape up the money for a working license has a special privilege.

HARD ON MEMBERS

The fight between the A. F. of L. and the CIO for possession of certain unions and the consequent strikes and loss of work by people who have no important grievance against wages, hours or conditions are not denied, either. They are merely excused as unavoidable disorder in a general rough-house between two groups each accusing the other of each and every fault. But in this process a man joins one union under pressure and presently discovers that he is barred from his job and subject to assault because he joined the wrong union.

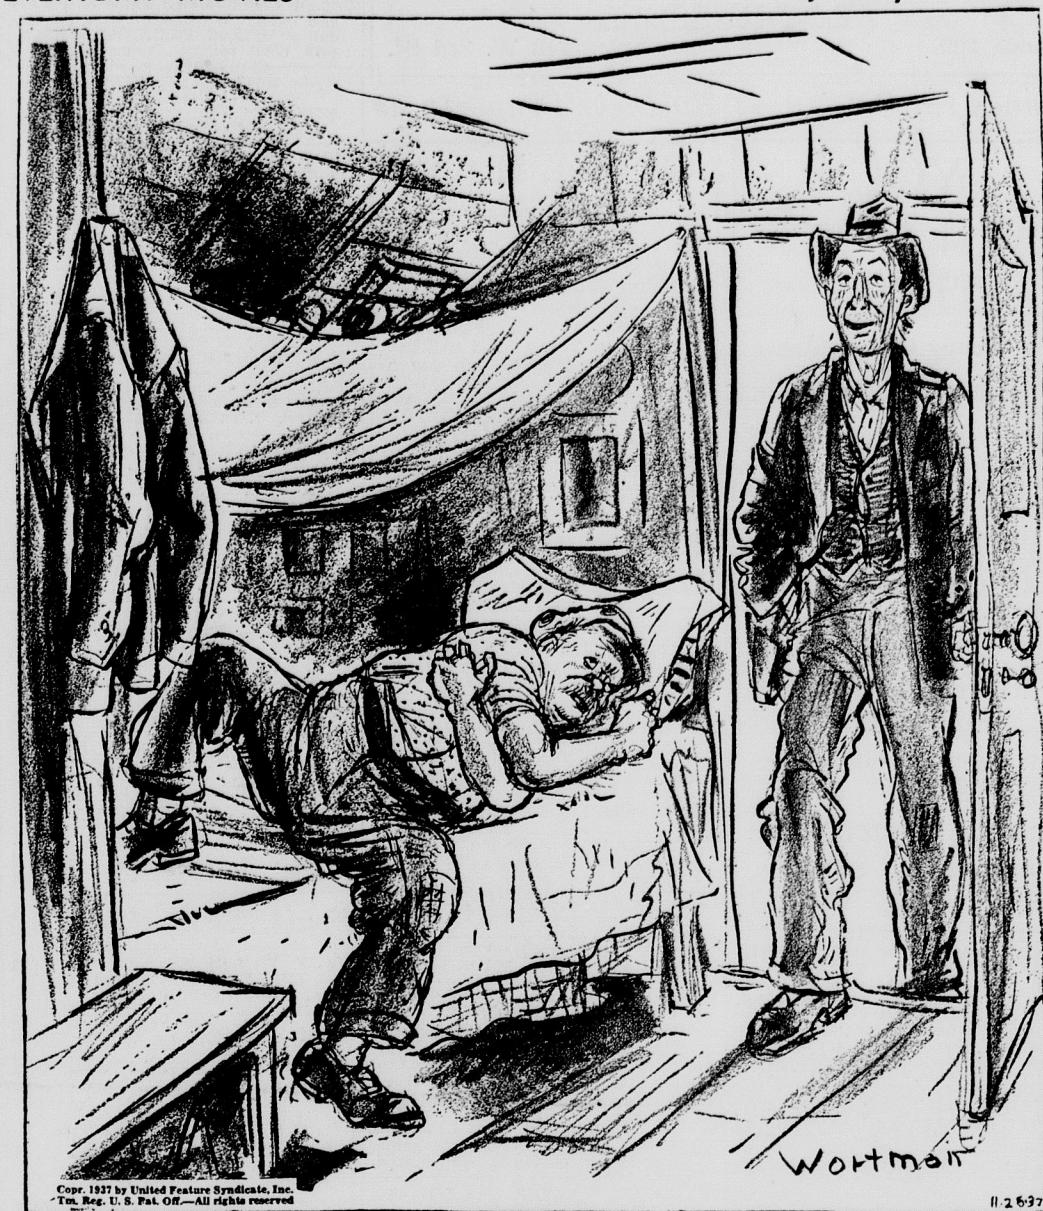

BECK AND SCABS

There are unions which could find appropriate praise for the clear-eyed, clean-limbed stalwarts of Dave Beck's A. F. of L. dictatorship in Seattle until they quit the A. F. of L. and went CIO. Thereafter Mr. Beck's clear-eyed, clean-limbed stalwarts regarded them as scabs—a harsh and hated word applied to anyone who disagrees with any union's policy—and treated them as such. At this point Mr. Beck's men became sluggers and hoodlums in the official opinion of their late comrades, and Beck himself, so recently a knight in shiny armor, became a bloody tyrant. But Mr. Beck and his stalwarts had not changed. The apoliticals had not changed, either. The only change was in the apostates' point of view.

The money is more important than most people realize. It is enormous money, but it is collected and administered by private taxing bodies having no public responsibility, and in the great aggregate there is no public accounting. Much of it has been grafted. And what group of capitalists could bring so much money pressure to bear in an election?

There are other imperfections in the system, but intimidation, extortion, irresponsibility, graft and dictatorship must be eliminated if labor is to be any better off under the rule of the unioner than under the oppression of bad employers.

Twenty-Five Years Ago

NOV. 26, 1912

By a score of 29-0, the strong Santa Ana football team won its last football game of the season from Whittier High school in Whittier Saturday. Raymond Selph, Captain Bill Warren, Tiny Barker and West were stars in the Santa Ana lineup.

WASHINGTON.—Congress will reconvene a week from today for the last short session of Republican control in national legislation. Among the important measures to be discussed are Senator Borah's bill to create a department of labor, Senator Works' (Calif.) bill to limit the president to a single six-year term and a bill prohibiting the shipment of liquor into prohibition states.

ANAHEIM.—Emaciated, barefooted, clad in tattered rags and unable to converse coherently, a veritable wild man was brought to this city Saturday. The man was captured at a mountain ranch above Olinda. Evidently demented, the man has been hiding in the hills for more than three years, and has run in terror whenever he saw a stranger approaching.

Supervisors H. E. Smith and Joseph Leck are in Los Angeles today looking into the cost of constructing good roads through Orange county.

I'll Tell You

By BOB BURNS

I don't believe I was ever so nervous in my life as I was not long ago when they made me Honorary Chairman of the Police of Spokane, Washington. I know how easy it is for the public to misjudge a man in public office.

I remember one time when my Uncle Hink was the deputy sheriff down home and one day he went to Mulberry to bring back a horse thief who had been captured down there and when he came ridin' back into Van Buren on his horse, he had a rope tied to one end of the saddle horn and the thief was tied to the other end. The people were awfully sore at Uncle Hink.

They said: "We don't want a man in office as cruel as you—surely you didn't make that prisoner walk all the way from Mulberry." Uncle Hink says: "Why, I didn't make him walk! I wouldn't do a thing like that—I drug him most of the way and when we got to the Arkansas river, he swum!"

Remarkable Remarks

No professional man who has any pride at all should draw a salary, whether it be from state, municipal or federal government, if he does nothing.—Clifford Greve, St. Louis attorney who resigned because he was not getting enough work to earn his pay.

What most of us are interested in is not that the proverbial fool and his money are soon parted, but how they got together in the first place.

The Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

(This is the last of a series of Merry-Go-Round surveys of the foreign affairs problems confronting the Roosevelt administration.—Editor's Note.)

Chances of world conflict rest on U. S. as on Britain in 1914: Nazi-Fascists enter Latin America; U. S. public not roused yet; Jap threat forces France into Indo-China ban on arms to China; Japs in China, Fascists in South America give Roosevelt worry.

WASHINGTON.—It is now an accepted truism of history that the Germans would never have started the World War had they known for certain in 1914 that Great Britain would enter the conflict.

At that time Britain pursued a mythical policy of aloofness to the squabbles on the continent. The English channel to her was what the Atlantic ocean was to us.

But today, modern invention, particularly aviation, has narrowed the English channel to a mere rivulet, and contracted the Atlantic ocean so that the United States, in effect, holds the balance for peace or war.

Whether we have a neutrality act or not, it is probably true that today the United States occupies a position equivalent to the British in 1914, and that if Germany and Italy knew definitely in advance that the United States would enter a war they would not precipitate it.

This is not the opinion of state department experts alone. It is also the very general view of impartial and non-political foreign affairs experts; and whether the senate likes it or not, this is the biggest foreign affairs problem possibly the biggest of all problems—before the Roosevelt administration.

LATIN AMERICAN FASCISM

Where fascism hits the United States full in the face is South America. We woke up to this only with recent events in Brazil, but for some time the Fascist states, deprived of actual colonies, have found substitutes by building up unofficial colonies in South America. By trade, radio, air lines, Nazi-controlled newspapers, and by subsidized local political parties, Germany, Italy, and to a lesser extent, Japan have done exactly what Russia is accused of doing, but without success.

Their policy has been cheaper than conquest and has not aroused the active opposition of the United States.

Should these Nazi-Fascist forces be seriously threatened by socialist or liberal groups in South America, however, Germany and Italy probably would do as they did in Spain—send "volunteers," but without success.

The repercussions in the United States can be imagined. This country would not go to war to protect her economic relations with Latin America, but when those relations are included as part of a more tangible policy, such as the Monroe Doctrine, then it might be impossible to stop public indignation and war.

JAPAN SPIES

Just a day or so before the American fleet was scheduled to leave San Francisco harbor on the last maneuvers, a Japanese tanker anchored offshore, waiting for the fleet to come out. On the tanker, according to naval intelligence, were two Japanese admirals, four captains and two commanders.

Outmaneuvering them, the fleet delayed departure for two days until the tanker entered the harbor. After this, its clearance papers were held up for about a week until the fleet was well out at sea. Meanwhile the Japanese officers were allowed to view certain things which the navy wanted them to know about, no more.

These concerned the efficiency of the fleet, which, among other facts, have given the Japanese more cause to worry about threats of American naval action, than the policy of any other foreign country.

Simultaneously, suave, shrewd little Ambassador Saito has been reporting to his government that no matter how strong the fleet, American public opinion will not permit its use against Japan—even to enforce economic sanctions. In this he is probably right.

Public opinion would not have permitted Roosevelt to pledge U. S. aid to France in case of trouble in Indo-China, and it would not allow Roosevelt to engage in economic sanctions—though it might have done so during the height of the Shanghai disaster.

Public opinion is one thing; Fascist nations do not have to worry about, giving them a freedom of action impossible to lumbering ships of democracy.

Despite being stymied by public opinion, Roosevelt advisers say he is worried about two things: (1) the chances of a powerful Japanese empire firmly planted in China; (2) growing Fascist-Nazi influence in South America.

Should both become strong they might execute on the United States the same pincer movement they are now using on Great Britain: Japan tying up our fleet in the Pacific, while the Nazi-Fascists run riot in South America.

That is why U. S. policies in both Asia and South America are so crucial at present.

What Other Editors Say

BLAB, BLAB!

Bad language is the most mighty weapon in the arsenal of despots and demagogues. Indeed, it is doubtful if a people learned in semantics would tolerate any sort of supreme political dictator. A typical speech by an aspiring Hitler would be translated into its intrinsic meaning, if any. Abstract words and phrases without discoverable referents would register a semantic blank, noises without meaning. For instance:

"The Aryan Fatherland, which has nursed the souls of heroes, calls upon you for the supreme sacrifice which you, in whom flows heroic blood, will not fail, and which will echo forever down the corridors of history," would be translated:

"The blab blab, which has nursed the blab blab calls upon you for the blab blab which you, in whom flows blab blab, will not fail, and which will echo blab down the blab blab."

The "blab" is not an attempt to be funny; it is a semantic blank. Nothing comes through. The hearer, versed in reducing high-order abstractions to either nil or a series of roughly similar events in the real world of experience, simply hears nothing comprehensible.

If, however, a political leader says: "Every adult in the geographical area called Germany will receive not more than two loaves of bread per week for the next six months," there is little possibility of communication failure. There is not a blab in a carload of such talk.—Stuart Chase in Harper's Magazine.

TRUMPETER SWANS INCREASE

A few years ago, the trumpeter swan, one of the great birds of the American sky, was on its way to extinction. Its eight-foot spread of broad white wings, gracefully stroking the air, was becoming rarer with each migration. The musically resonant call, with its suggestion of the French horn, seemed destined to pass from the heavens, so difficult had destructive man made it for the giant white bird to nest and breed in the upper reaches of the Mississippi valley.

It is good news, therefore, which the federal bureau of biological survey releases when it reports that an increase of 13 in the trumpeter swan population was noted in a recent census. The figures show that there are now at least 158 birds of this fine species in the United States and that this year's count of young swans is 77 as against 41 young last year. For this thanks are due to the protection of the trumpeter swan in the Red Rocks migratory waterfowl refuge in southwestern Montana.

The whistling swan belongs on the Atlantic and Pacific coasts; it is the Mississippi valley which is the highroad of the larger sounder of the trumpet. May its passage again become a common sight against our fall and springtime skies!—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

American motor cars mechanically are considered the best and safest in the world. Among the rarest causes of motor accidents nowadays is a mechanical failure in a car whose owner has kept it reasonably well tuned up. With periodic inspection laws fighting their way through more and more state legislatures, mechanical failure as a cause of accidents ought sooner or later to be cut down to the irreducible minimum.

It is on the subject of visibility that we'd like to voice a few ideas. We mean visibility from the driver's eye-level in all directions, forward, sideways and back.

Three main factors are involved—amount of glass and steel around the driver, height of the driving position, height and length of the hood and fenders. So far as is consistent with safe engineering, the driver ought to have a lighthouse keeper's look-out facilities in all directions.

The trouble is that the ladies think more of style and the importance of appearance in a car than they do of the visibility from the driver's seat. And the ladies are the ones who buy or cause to be bought most of the private cars in the country.—New York Daily News.

JAPAN FIGHTS WITH OPIUM

Japan's merciless bombing and shelling of the civilian population in her current conquest of China is matched by the ruthlessness means she has used to exploit and pacify the people in the territory she has occupied.

Dr. Arthur La Roe, president of the American Narcotic Defense association, says Japan has flooded North China with narcotics refined in Manchoukuo, "to the degradation of the Chinese people and the success of Japanese arms." The Japanese government rigidly forbids the use of opium in Japan, but has openly fostered a huge expansion in the manufacture and distribution of the drug in the conquered territory. Dr. La Roe asserts: "He is supported by numerous other authorities on Japanese-Chinese relations."

Before Japan opened her latest invasion, the Chinese government was taking drastic steps to curb the narcotic evil. Heavy penalties were imposed on those found guilty of dealing in narcotics, and numerous hospitals were set up to treat addicts. Now all this progress has been wiped out.

The Tokyo militarists would save the Chinese from the alleged threat of radicalism by destroying them, morally and physically, with narcotic drugs. Such are the gifts Japan bears as she comes protesting her desire to be a "friend" to the Chinese.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Look-alikes: Ruby Keeler and Mrs. Vanderbilt. Suggestion: Grover Whalen's waxed mustache under glass for one of the world's fair museums. Any magazine piece by Paul Gallico immediately gets my attention. Somehow I expect folks from Gloucester to wear oil-skin slickers.

Dean Cornwell in riding pants would make a swell "Aha, my proud beauty" stage villain of the old days. Jack Powell, who literally beat his way around the world with a couple of drum sticks. Be fun to walk behind the monocol Jules Bache and Achmed Abdullah and drop watch crystals.

A runner-up for the late William Gillette's train man is Lucius Beebe, gazetteer from Back Bay and thoroughgoing city slicker. The actor Gillette, as almost everyone knows, had a complete miniature railroad encircling his vast Connecticut acres. Trains have been Beebe's secret hobby since romper days. Today when he has an afternoon off he goes to Coney to ride the toy choo-choos or take a commutation trip to some near-by suburbia. Frequently he has entrained to Hollywood just for the ride. Some weeks ago a publisher article him for a book on railroads and locomotives and Beebe spent three weeks prowling the roundhouses, yards and terminals in various parts of the country. As precautionary measure, Harry Staton declares Beebe's bootmaker fashioned a pair of modish gaiters so he could escape if he caught a foot in the switches.

Sport writers are the only scribblers who can guess wrong most the time and not lose face. Particularly have their forecasts been cock-eyed in championship fights. So much so, shrewd Broadway gamblers let the summations and bet the other way. Schmidt was to be a pushover for Joe Louis and Tommy Farr couldn't survive three rounds with the same fighter. Max Baer was hailed as the great invincible champion. So goes a list of wrong "uns. The sports writer's saving grace has been their ability to kid themselves and never offer alibi. Almost anybody warns to those who admit they are wrong. Also, no branch of sports is so susceptible to laws of upset as boxing.

Students of men's style say the most perfect groomed oldest in America is General John Pershing. In uniform, business suit or evening dress. He is costumed correctly, but when he appears on the street, even those who may not recognize his face would turn to glance at the magnificent figure. His physique is the delight of tailors. Col. Jacob Ruppert is also a fashion plate among the elders. And there's the octogenarian duke, Col. Creighton Webb.

In my occasional peeks at the Brummels this winter, I find little style change from last. Some of the forward stylists are sporting the Noel Coward sleeve, a sort of puff at the elbow, and the arm-pits—she has used to exploit and pacify the people in the territory she has occupied.

From an etiquette column: "Question—In the bath of a strange house where I was a house guest some innocent started to open the door. I began to scream. What should I have done?" My answer would be either that or start making soapsuds.
